No. 829L.S.-G.—26th May 1942.—Owing to defects in the administration and for default in the performance of duties imposed upon the Kotalpur-Mondalika union board in police-station Jangipara, district Hooghly, the Kotalpur-Mondalika union board was superseded on two occasions for a total period of one year with effect from the 17th April 1941 as ordered in my No. 458L.S.-G., dated the 8th April 1941, and No. 468L.S.-G., dated the 21st March 1942, respectively.

2. Meanwhile, on the representation of the inhabitants and rate-payers of the said board and after consideration of the views of the Hooghly district board and the Serampore local board, the Kotalpur-Mondalika union board has been split up into two separate unions (viz., Kotalpur and Mondalika) under Government orders conveyed in their No. 637-L.S.-G., dated the 13th March 1942, of the Department of Public Health and Local Self-Government. According to rule 1 of the Election Rules under the Village Self-Government Act, the first election of these two union boards shall take place within six months after their establishment. I am of opinion that the present Kotalpur-Mondalika union board is not competent to perform its duties during this period and I therefore declare by order issued under section 56(1)(b) of the Village Self-Government Act of 1919, as amended by section 4 of Bengal Act IX of 1932, that the Kotalpur-Mondalika union board be superseded for a further period of six months with effect from the 17th April 1942.

3. In exercise of the powers conferred by section 57(1)(b) of the Village Self-Government Act, I direct that all the powers and duties of the union board shall, during the further period of supersession, be exercised and performed by Mr. Hafez Moula Bux, the present President of the union board, and that all properties vested in the union board shall, during that period, be vested in him according to section 57(1)(c) ibid and he shall be responsible for their safe custody during the period of supersession.

Notice is hereby given that the following bye-laws for the control of brick-field framed by the Dacca district board are published for general information.

They will be taken into consideration on or after the 1st July 1942. Any objection or suggestion received from any person, before the prescribed date, will be duly considered:—

Model Bye-laws for the control of brick-field.

1. For the purposes of these bye-laws "brick-field" means a place where burnt or sun-dried bricks are made.

2. No person shall establish a new brick-field or work an existing brick-field without first obtaining a license from the district board in Form A appended to these bye-laws, provided that no license shall be necessary for making bricks out of earth dug from the ponds that are especially assigned for the purpose by the district board, and the bricks so made are used for erecting buildings for the use of villagers themselves.

3. No new brick-field shall be established within a distance of 50 yards from the outer boundary of any public road or half a mile from any inhabited area but the existing brick-fields shall, subject to the payment of license fee and compliance with the sanitary provisions of these bye-laws, continue during the currency of their present lease. Such lease shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Chairman of the district board by producing the registered Instrument mentioning the period of lease.

4. Before a license for a brick-field is issued each case shall be referred to the District Health Officer for opinion, and the license shall not be issued if the establishment or continuation of the brick-field is considered to be dangerous from the point of view of public health. If there be any difference of opinion between the District Health Officer and the district board, the matter shall be referred to the Assistant Director of Public Health of the circle concerned, whose opinion on the matter shall be final and binding.

5. For every license for a brick-field a fee of five rupees shall be payable annually.

6. Such license shall be current for not more than 12 months commencing from 1st October every year, and in any case shall terminate on 30th September immediately succeeding the date of issue.

7. Application for the renewal of a license shall be made by the 31st August, or, at least one full month before the date of termination of the license.

8. No person shall make any excavation of a depth of more than 5 feet for the purpose of removing or causing to be removed earth to be used for making bricks;

Provided that this bye-law shall not apply in case of village ponds from where kacha bricks are actually made by the villagers themselves for their own use.

9. Subject to the approval of the district board the licensee shall provide—

(a) adequate and suitable accommodation for the labourers working at the brick-field;

(b) pure and wholesome water-supply for drinking and other domestic purposes of such labourers; and

(c) sufficient and suitable latrines and urinals for the labourers.

10. Any license granted under these bye-laws may impose such other conditions as in the opinion of the district board appear necessary for the safety and convenience of the public or any portion of the public.

11. Every application for a license under these bye-laws shall contain full particulars of the situation and boundary of the land to be used as brick-field for which the license is required together with a site plan, in duplicate, of the land. On the receipt of the license, the licensee shall demarcate the boundary at the site to the satisfaction of the Chairman of the district board before actually starting work.

12. Any person who commits a breach or abets the commission of a breach of any of these bye-laws shall on conviction by a Magistrate be punishable with a fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and in the case of continuing breach with a further fine which may extend to five rupees for every day during which the breach is continued after the offender has been convicted of such breach, and if a licensee is so convicted his license may be cancelled.

Boarders have to pay, on admission, Re. 1 as admission fee and Rs. 5 as caution money. (The higher rate of charges for the Hindu hostel is due to the smaller number of Hindu boarders.)

In addition to the general scholarships and stipends awarded by the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, and the Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Dacca, on the results of the Matriculation and High School Examinations, there are free studentships, stipends and various other privileges open to the students of the College. A large number of special stipends and free studentships are available for students belonging to Muslim community, Scheduled Castes and educationally backward classes. PRESS COMMUNIQUE.

The price of kerosene was last revised on 22nd April 1942 on the advice received from the Government of India. The Kerosene Companies' Agents were, till lately, supplying oil to the city dealers free of any transport charges but as with the heavy rise in cost of transport in the city this practice has been discontinued; an enhancement of prices by Annas 2-6 for 4 gallons has been found necessary.

Order.

In exercise of the power conferred by clause (b) of sub-rule (2) of rule 81 of the Defence of India Rules, which has been directed to be exercised by me by notification No. 463P., dated the 13th January 1942, I hereby direct that the prices of kerosene oil in the town of Calcutta as defined in section 3 of the Calcutta Police Act, 1866, together with the suburbs of Calcutta as defined by notification under section 1 of the Calcutta Suburban Police Act, 1866, shall, with effect from the 25th May 1942, be as follows:—

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL

Final Forecast of the Wheat Crop of Bengal, 1941-42.

(Note.—On an average of the five years ending 1939-40, the area under wheat in Bengal has represented some 0·4 per cent. of the total area under wheat in India. The ratio of the irrigated wheat acreage to total wheat acreage in (a) British India and (b) in the territory now reported on, has, in the five years ending 1939-40, averaged (a) 45·3 and (b) 8·5 per cent., respectively.)

Character of the season.—As reported in the Third Forecast issued in April last drought adversely affected the crop at important stages of its growth. Later on rains with high winds injured the crop at the advanced stage in the district of Murshidabad and consequently the anticipated outturn has further been reduced. Some damage was also caused at places by insect-pests.

Acreage.—According to the District Officers' estimates, the total area sown is 170,000 acres as against 169,100 acres last year.

Outturn.—The provincial outturn on the basis of the District Officers' estimates works out to 69 per cent. of the normal as against 57 per cent. last year. Taking the normal yield to be 9 3/5th maunds per acre, the gross yield of the crop for the province is estimated at 41,400 tons this year as against 34,000 tons last year.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

Murshidabad. — No. 1046P.H.—9th June 1942.—Whereas the Governor is satisfied that the municipality of Jiaganj-Azimganj is threatened with an outbreak of cholera:

Now, therefore, in exercise of the power conferred by section 2A, read with sub-section (I) of section 2 of the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897 (Act III of 1897), the Governor is pleased to prescribe the following temporary regulations for the prevention and control of cholera, and for the medical inspection, isolation, observation and surveillance of persons suffering from, or suspected of being infected with, cholera in the said town, for a period of two months:—

Temporary regulations for the prevention and control of cholera.

1. In these regulations, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context:—

(a) "Health Officer" means the Health Officer of the municipality;
(b) "Sanitary Inspector" means a Sanitary Inspector appointed by the municipality;
(c) "suspected cholera" means any disease accompanied by vomiting and diarrhœa;
(d) "Patient" means a person suffering from or suspected to be suffering from cholera;
(e) "medical practitioner" means any person practising the medical profession.

2. Whenever any land is held jointly by two or more persons, whether as owners or occupiers of that land, such persons shall be held jointly and severally liable for carrying out any measure ordered in a notice under these regulations, and the names of any one or more of such joint-holders may be entered upon such notice at the discretion of the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector and the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector shall not be bound to enter the names of all the joint-holders in the notice.

Notices.

3. If in any case the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector considers that the issue of a notice under these regulations is likely to lead to such an amount of delay as might facilitate the spread of cholera he may forthwith take such steps as he may think fit for carrying out the work, and shall thereafter, as soon as possible, issue a notice on the person concerned stating the reason why such work has been carried out.

4. If any measure which the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector has, by a notice issued under these regulations, required to be carried out, be not carried out to his satisfaction within the time stated in the notice the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector shall be entitled to carry out the measure.

Costs and compensation.

5. (I) All expenses incurred in carrying out any work in pursuance of an order issued under these regulations shall be paid by the municipality except in any case where the order directs a person to carry out any work in relation to property in his possession, in which case the expenses shall be paid by that person:

Provided that where the conditions, which led the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector to pass such an order, are not attributable to any act or default of the persons in possession of the property, the municipality may pay to such person the whole or a part of expenses incurred by him in carrying out the order.

(2) The municipality may recover all expenses incurred by the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector in carrying out the measure under regulation 4 from the person or persons to whom the notice was originally issued.

6. The municipality shall pay adequate compensation to any person who has sustained substantial loss or damage by reason of anything done under these regulations:

Provided that no person shall receive any compensation for anything done or suffered under these regulations, if he has failed to carry out an order issued under these regulations within the time specified in the order and to the satisfaction of the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector.

Location of disease.

7. When a case of cholera or suspected cholera occurs in a house, the nearest male relative in attendance upon the patient, or in the absence of any such relative the occupier of the house, or if the occupier be the patient, some male inmate of the house shall, within twenty-four hours of the onset of the disease, give information regarding the occurrence of such case either personally or in writing to the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector.

8. (1) If information has not already been given under regulation 7, the medical practitioner called in to attend upon any case of cholera shall forthwith give notice of the case by special messenger to the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector and the cost of such messenger in each case shall be defrayed by the municipality.

(2) The doctor-in-charge of a hospital or a dispensary within the municipality shall forthwith give notice of any case of cholera brought to such hospital or dispensary for treatment to the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector by a special messenger and the cost of such messenger in each case shall be defrayed by the municipality.

9 Registrars of births and deaths shall supply to the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector such periodical returns of cases of cholera as he may from time to time call upon them to furnish.

10. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may examine any person who is, or suspected to be, suffering from cholera or who, in his opinion, may be infected with or likely to spread cholera.

Isolation of patients and evacuation of houses, etc.

11. When the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector considers that the isolation of any patient is a precaution necessary for the protection of the neighbouring population, he shall order the patient to observe isolation and may order the nearest relative in attendance on the patient, or the occupier of the house in which the patient is staying, to arrange for the isolation of the patient in such a manner and for such a time as may be approved by the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector.

He shall not direct the patient to be removed from the house unless it is in his opinion impossible to make proper arrangements for his isolation therein.

12. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may order that any person, who has in his opinion been exposed to infection from cholera, shall take such drugs in such quantities as may be specified by the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector or shall submit himself to anti-cholera inoculation within a time to be specified in the order.

13. No person shall enter any place wherein a patient is isolated under regulation 11 without the permission of the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector.

14. The municipality shall provide free of charge suitable places, with necessary attendants, medicine, diet and other necessaries for persons isolated under regulation 11: Provided that a private individual may provide places certified by the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector as being fit for the purpose of such isolation.

14A. If it is not possible for the municipal commissioners to provide suitable places with necessary attendants, diet and other necessaries for isolation of the patient or if satisfactory arrangement for such isolation is not also possible in the house where the patient is staying, the patient shall be sent, under proper sanitary precautions, to the hospital within or outside the nearest municipality where there is suitable arrangement for isolation.

15. No person, who is or has been suffering from cholera, shall leave the place where he has been staying until he has received from the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector written permission to do so.

16. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may require any person to allow to be carried out by such agency and within such time as may be specified in the order, such measures for the disinfection or evacuation of any premises in the occupation of such person or for the disinfection or destruction of any of his personal effects, as the said officer or inspector may consider necessary.

17. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may direct the owner or occupier of any premises to cause to be inoculated with anti-cholera vaccine within a time to be specified in the order any person residing on such premises and under the control of such owner or occupier if the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector is of opinion that such person has been exposed to infection from cholera.

18. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may forbid any person who has been a patient or who has, to his knowledge, been in contact with a patient, to act as vendor of any article for such period as may be specified in the order.

18A. No person shall carry or permit to be carried in a public conveyance a patient except in the case where a patient is carried with proper precautions to a hospital.

19. No person shall sell any article which has been in contact with a patient until it has been disinfected to the satisfaction of the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector.

19A. No person shall expose in any street, shop, bazar or any public place any clothing, bedding or other article which has been in contact with a patient or shall cause or suffer such articles to be carried in any public conveyance, but nothing in this regulation shall apply to a person who transmits with proper precautions against spreading the disease any such article for the purpose of having the same disinfected.

19B. No person shall carry or permit to be carried in a public conveyance the dead body of any person who has died of cholera without the previous written permission of the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector, and without taking proper precautions against spreading the said disease.

Water-supply.

20. (1) When the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector is of opinion that the water in any well, tank, pool or other possible source of water-supply is contaminated or is likely to be contaminated, he may at once take such steps as he deems necessary to close such well, tank, pool or other source of water-supply, or may require the owner or occupier of land upon which such well, tank, pool or source of water-supply is situated, to take steps to close the same to the satisfaction of the Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, as the case may be, within such time as may be specified in the order.

(2) The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may require such owner or occupier to keep closed during such a period as shall be specified in the order any well, tank pool or other sources of water-supply closed under paragraph (1) of this regulation.

Explanation.—In this regulation, "to close" includes the placing of watchman to prevent access to the well, tank, pool or other source of water-supply.

21. When the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector is of opinion that the water in any well, tank, pool or source of water-supply is contaminated he may disinfect it or order its owner or occupier to disinfect it with such disinfectants as he may specify in such quantities and at such times as he may think fit.

22. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may prohibit persons from entering into or using for drinking, bathing, or any other purpose, during such period as may be specified in the order, the water in any well, tank, pool or other possible source of water-supply, which, in his opinion, is contaminated or likely to be contaminated.

23. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may, by an order published at such places as he may think fit, set apart any well, tank, part of a river, stream or channel not being private property, or being private property with the consent of the owner, for the supply of water for drinking or culinary purposes and may prohibit therein or within a distance therefrom to be stated in the order all bathing, washing of clothes or animals, or other acts calculated to pollute the water; and may similarly set apart any well, tank, part of a river, stream or channel for the purpose of bathing or for the purpose of washing animals or clothes or for any other purpose connected with the health and cleanliness of the people using such water-supply.

24. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may prohibit persons from easing themselves, or throwing, depositing or discharging any rubbish, sewage or offensive matter, into any well, tank, pool or other source of water-supply, which is used by the public, or within such a distance from such well, tank, pool or source of water-supply as he may fix.

Conservancy and sewage disposal.

25. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may (1) prohibit the committal or continuance of any nuisance, or (2) require the person causing any nuisance or the person occupying the premises on which any nuisance exists to remove such nuisance.

Explanation.—In this regulation, "nuisance" means anything which in the opinion of the Health Officer or Sanitary Inspector is likely to spread or to cause the outbreak of cholera.

26. Whenever the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector is satisfied that the condition of any privy, urinal, drain, sewer or cesspool is such as to cause risk of spreading cholera to the inhabitants of the neighbourhood he may order the occupier of the land in which such privy, urinal, drain, sewer or cesspool is situated to disinfect, or to allow an officer of the municipality to disinfect, the same with such disinfectants in such quantities and at such time as the said officer or inspector shall think fit.

27. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may for the prevention of the outbreak or spread of cholera order the owner or occupier of any land to repair or make efficient to the satisfaction of that officer or inspector any drain, sewer, privy, urinal or cesspool which is situated upon such land or to remove any such drain, sewer, privy, or urinal or close any such cesspool within such time as may be fixed by the said officer or inspector.

Miscellaneous.

28. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may during the prevalence of any outbreak of cholera order that any market, shop or other public place shall remain closed for such time as may appear to him to be necessary and may forbid the holding of any fair, mela or other gathering to which people from surrounding places commonly or periodically resort.

29. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may require the owner or occupier of any land to clear and remove, within the period specified in the order, any vegetation upon such land the existence of which in the opinion of the said officer or inspector conduces to the committing of nuisances upon such land.

30. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may issue general orders that by a specified date certain sanitary precautions of a simple nature, such as lime-washing of houses, clearing of latrines or the removal of filth or rubbish shall be carried out to his satisfaction.

34. Any person burning or causing to be burnt any corpse shall cause the same to be completely reduced to ashes, and shall likewise cause the clothes or other articles brought with such corpse to be reduced to ashes.

35. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may direct that no person shall bury or cause to be buried any corpse which, in the opinion of the Health Officer, is likely to spread cholera in a grave not constructed of masonry and less than six feet deep.

36. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may order that no dome or other servant of the municipality employed for the disposal of corpses shall withdraw from his duties without the permission of the Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector unless such dome or other servant of the municipality has given notice in writing not less than one month previously of his intention so to withdraw.

37. The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may through any person authorised by such officer or inspector in that behalf seize and dispose of any corpse, which in the opinion of the said officer or inspector, is infected with or is likely to spread cholera, unless the relatives or friends of the deceased person satisfy him that they are prepared and able to dispose of the corpse in a manner which will prevent the spread of cholera.

38. (1) The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may require any person who appears to be acquainted with facts in connection with any case of cholera or suspected cholera to attend before him at a time to be stated in the order and at any place not more than one mile from the place where such person resides or is staying when the order is issued, and such person shall appear as so required.

(2) When the person summoned to appear under paragraph (1) is a female who, by the custom of the country, does not appear in public suitable precaution shall be taken to respect the said custom.

39. (1) The Health Officer or a Sanitary Inspector may examine orally any person who appears to be acquainted with the facts and circumstances of a case of cholera or suspected cholera.

(2) When the person to be examined under paragraph (1) is a female who, by the custom of the country, does not appear in public, the officer shall take her statement under such conditions as shall admit of due respect to the said custom.

RAILWAY AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS SERVICES RULES (1942).

1. Short title, extent and commencement.—(1) These rules may be called the Railway Air Raid Precautions Services Rules, 1942.

(2) They extend to all railway and other areas in British India for which Railway Air Raid Precautions Services have been or may be constituted under the Ordinance.

(3) A Service shall consist of some or all of the following sub-services and of such other sub-services as may be added by the railway administration:—

4. Appointment.—(1) The Controller and, subject to the general approval of the Controller, any official authorised to act on his behalf may appoint to any of the sub-services in the area under his control members in such numbers as may from time to time be fixed by the railway administration under sub-section (1) of section 4 of the Ordinance. Persons so appointed shall exercise the powers and discharge the duties assigned to them by or under these rules.

(2) No person shall be appointed a member of a Service who in the opinion of the appointing authority is not physically fit.

Definitions and interpretation.

2. (1) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) one person is said to be an "agnate" (gotraja) of another, if the two are related by blood wholly through males;

(b) one person is said to be a "cognate" (bandhu) of another, if the two are related by blood, but not wholly through males;

(c) "heir" means any person, male or female, who is entitled to succeed to the property of an intestate under this Act;

(d) "heritable property" means property which belongs to an intestate in his or her own right and passes by inheritance as distinct from survivorship;

Illustration.

All property of a Hindu governed by the Dayabhaga School of Hindu Law is heritable property, as it passes by inheritance and not by survivorship; so too is the self-acquired property of a Hindu governed by any Mitakshara School of Hindu Law, as such property also passes by inheritance and not by survivorship.

(e) "Hindu" includes any person who, if this Act were not in force, would be governed in matters of intestate succession by the Hindu Law;

(f) "related" means related by legitimate kinship, and any word expressing relationship or denoting a relative shall be construed accordingly;

(g) two persons are said to be related to each other by the "full blood" when they are descended from a common ancestor by the same wife, and by the "half blood" when they are descended from a common ancestor by different wives;

(h) "son" includes a dattaka son, dwyámushyáyana son and kritrima son, but not a dásíputra; and dattaka son, dwyámushyáyana son, kritrima son and dásíputra have the same meanings as in the Hindu Law;

(i) "stridhana" means property acquired by a woman by inheritance or devise, or at a partition, or in lieu of maintenance, or by gift from a relative or stranger before, at, or after her marriage, or by her own skill or exertions, or by purchase, or by prescription, or by any other mode whatsoever.

(2) In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context, words importing the masculine gender shall not be taken to include females, and for the purposes of this Act,—

(a) a person is deemed to die intestate in respect of all property of which he or she has not made a testamentary disposition capable of taking effect;

(b) a woman shall be deemed to be an agnate of her father and his agnates, and shall not, by reason only of her marriage, be deemed to be an agnate of her husband or his agnates;

(c) the domicile of a Hindu shall be determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sections 6 to 18, both inclusive, of the Indian Succession Act, 1925; XXXIX of 1925.

(d) when an adoption takes place,—

(i) in the case of a dattaka son, the natural tie is severed and is replaced by the tie created by the adoption,

(ii) in the case of a dwyámushyáyana son, the natural tie continues side by side with the tie created by the adoption,

(iii) in the case of a kritrima son, the natural tie continues, while the tie created by the adoption is limited to the person adopted and the person or persons adopting him.

Illustration.

A adopts C, son of B. C has a son, D, born to him after the adoption Then, for the purposes of inheritance, the following consequences will result, depending upon whether C was adopted as a dattaka, dwyamushyayana or kritrima son of A

If C was adopted as a dattaka son, he becomes the son of A and ceases to be the son of B. He also becomes the grandson of A's father and the nephew of A's brother, and so on He ceases to be the grandson of B's father and the nephew of B's brother. Likewise, D becomes the grandson of A but not of B

If C was adopted as a dwyamushyayana son, he becomes the son of A, but continues to be the son of B as well He also becomes the grandson of A's father and the nephew of A's brother, but continues as well to be the grandson of B's father and the nephew of B's brother. Likewise, D becomes the grandson of A, and of B as well

If C was adopted as a kritrima son, he becomes the son of A while continuing to be the son of B as well. He does not, however, become the grandson of A's father or the nephew of A's brother, but remains the grandson of B's father and the nephew of B's brother. D on birth becomes the grandson of B and not of A.

Application of Act.

3. This Act regulates the succession to the heritable property of a Hindu, other than one governed by the Marumakkattayam, Aliyasantana or Nambudri law of inheritance, dying intestate after the commencement of this Act, in the following cases, namely:—

(a) where the property is movable property, unless it is proved that the intestate was not domicile in British India at the time of death,

(b) where the property is immovable property situated in British India, whether at the time of death the intestate was domiciled in British India or not:

Provided that this Act shall not apply—

(i) to agricultural land, or

(ii) to any estate which descends to a single heir by a customary or other rule of succession or by the terms of any grant or enactment:

Provided further that upon the death of any woman who at the commencement of this Act had the limited estate known as the Hindu woman's estate in any heritable property, such property shall devolve on the persons who would under this Act have been the heirs of the last full owner thereof if he had died intestate immediately after her.

Succession to the property of males.

Devolution of heritable property of males.

4. The heritable property of a male intestate shall devolve according to the rules laid down in this Act—

(a) upon the enumerated heirs referred to in section 5, if any;

(b) if there is no enumerated heir, upon his agnates, if any;

(c) if there is no agnate, upon his cognates, if any;

(d) if there is no cognate, upon the heirs referred to in section 10, if any.

Enumerated heirs.

5. The following relatives of an intestate are his enumerated heirs:—

Class I.—Widow and descendants:—

(1) Widow, son, daughter, son of a pre-deceased son, and son of a pre-deceased son of a pre-deceased son (the heirs in this entry being hereinafter in this Act referred to as "simultaneous heirs").

(2) Daughter's son.

(3) Son's daughter.

(4) Daughter's daughter.

Class II.—Mother, father and his descendants:—

(1) Mother.

(2) Father.

(3) Brother.

(4) Brother's son.

(5) Brother's son's son.

(6) Sister.

(7) Sister's son.

Class III.—Father's mother, father's father and his descendants:—

(1) Father's mother.

(2) Father's father.

(3) Father's brother.

(4) Father's brother's son.

(5) Father's brother's son's son.

(6) Father's sister's son.

Class IV.—Father's father's mother, father's father's father and his descendants:—

(1) Father's father's mother.

(2) Father's father's father.

(3) Father's father's brother.

(4) Father's father's brother's son.

(5) Father's father's brother's son's son.

(6) Father's father's sister's son.

Class V.—Mother's mother, mother's father and his descendants:—

(1) Mother's mother.

(2) Mother's father.

(3) Mother's brother.

(4) Mother's brother's son.

(5) Mother's brother's son's son.

(6) Mother's sister's son.

Order of succession among enumerated heirs.

6. Among the enumerated heirs, those in one Class shall be preferred to those in any succeeding Class; and within each Class, those included in one entry shall be preferred to those included in any succeeding entry, while those included in the same entry shall take together.

Illustrations.

(i) The surviving relatives of an intestate are his widow, his mother and his father's father. The widow who is included in Class I is preferred to the mother who is in Class II and the father's father who is in Class III.

(ii) The surviving relatives are two daughters and a son's daughter. The daughters who are included in entry (1) of Class I are preferred to the son's daughter who is in entry (3) of the same Class, and the two daughters take together.

(iii) The surviving relatives are a widow, two sons, three daughters, two grandsons by a pre-deceased son and a great-grandson by another pre-deceased son's pre-deceased son. All of them, being enumerated heirs included in entry (1) of Class I, succeed simultaneously, no one excluding the others.

Manner of distribution among simultaneous heirs.

7. The distribution of an intestate's property among the simultaneous heirs in entry (1) of Class I shall take place according to the following rules, namely:—

(a) The intestate's widow, or if there is more than one widow all the widows together, shall take one share.

(b) Each son of the intestate shall take one share, whether he was undivided or divided from, or re-united with, the intestate.

(c) Sons, sons of pre-deceased sons, and sons of pre-deceased sons of pre-deceased sons, shall take per stirpes, that is to say, the sons of a pre-deceased son shall take the share which would have been taken by him if he had been alive at the time of the intestate's death; and likewise, the grandsons of a pre-deceased son shall take the share which their father would have taken if he had been alive at the time aforesaid.

(d) Each of the intestate's daughters shall take half a share, whether she is unmarried, married or a widow; rich or poor; and with or without issue or possibility of issue.

Illustrations.

(i) The surviving relatives of an intestate are three sons, five grandsons by a pre-deceased son, and two great-grandsons by a pre-deceased son of another pre-deceased son. Each son takes 1/5th of the heritable estate, each grandson, 1/25th, and each great-grandson 1/10th.

(ii) Only a widow or daughter, and no other simultaneous heirs, survives an intestate. The widow or daughter, as the case may be, takes the whole of the heritable estate.

(iii) The surviving relatives of an intestate are two widows, a divided son, two undivided sons, an unmarried daughter, two married daughters, a widowed daughter, and four grandsons by a pre-deceased son. The two widows together take one share, each of the three sons takes one share, each of the four daughters takes half a share, and the four grandsons together take one share. Thus, each widow takes 1/14th of the heritable estate, each son 1/7th, each daughter 1/14th, and each grandson 1/28th.

Order of succession among non-enumerated heirs.

8. (1) The order of succession among agnates and cognates, other than enumerated heirs, shall be determined by applying the Rules of Preference in section 9.

(2) For the purpose of applying the said Rules, relationship shall be reckoned from the intestate to the heir in terms of degrees of ascent, or degrees of descent, or both, as the case may be.

(3) Degrees of ascent and degrees of descent shall be computed in the manner indicated in the illustrations below:—

Illustrations.

(i) The heir to be considered is the father's mother's father of the intestate. He has no degrees of descent but three degrees of ascent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's father, (2) that father's mother, and (3) her father (the heir).

(ii) The heir to be considered is the father's mother's father's mother of the intestate. She has no degree of descent, but four degrees of ascent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's father, (2) that father's mother, (3) her father, and (4) his mother (the heir).

(iii) The heir to be considered is the son's daughter's son's daughter of the intestate. She has no degrees of ascent, but four degrees of descent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's son, (2) that son's daughter, (3) her son, and (4) his daughter (the heir).

(iv) The heir to be considered is the mother's father's father's daughter's son of the intestate. He has three degrees of ascent represented, in order, by (1) the intestate's mother, (2) her father, and (3) that father's father, and two degrees of descent represented, in order, by (1) the daughter of the common ancestor, viz., the mother's father's father, and (2) her son (the heir).

Rules of Preference.

9. The Rules of Preference referred to in section 8 are as follows:—

Rule 1.—Of two heirs, the one who has fewer or no degrees of ascent is preferred.

Rule 2.—Where the number of degrees of ascent is the same or none, that heir is preferred who has fewer or no degrees of descent.

Rule 3.—Where the number of degrees of descent is also the same or none, the heir who is in the male line is preferred to the heir who is in the female line at the first point (counting from the intestate to the heir) where the lines of the two heirs can be so distinguished.

Rule 4.—Where neither heir is entitled to be preferred to the other under the foregoing Rules, they take together.

Illustrations.

In the following illustrations, the letters F and M stand respectively for the father and the mother in that portion of the line which ascends from the intestate to the common ancestor, and the letters S and D for the son and the daughter respectively in that portion of the line which descends from the common ancestor to the heir. Thus MFSS stands for the intestate's mother's father's son's son (mother's brother's son), and FDS for the intestate's father's daughter's son (sister's son).

(i) The competing heirs are (1) FFSD (father's brother's daughter) and (2) FDDS (sister's daughter's son). Although No. (2) is descended from a nearer ancestor yet, as No. (1) is an agnate while No. (2) is only a cognate, No. (1) is preferred to No. (2).

(ii) The competing heirs are (1) SDSS (son's daughter's son's son) and (2) FDDS (sister's daughter's son). No. (1) who has no degree of ascent is preferred to No. (2) who has one degree of ascent.

(iii) The competing heirs are (1) FDDD (sister's daughter's daughter) and (2) MFSD (maternal uncle's daughter). The former who has one degree of ascent is preferred to the latter who has two such degrees.

(iv) The competing heirs are (1) FDSSS (sister's son's son's son) and (2) MFSSD (maternal uncle's son's daughter). The former who has only one degree of ascent is preferred to the latter who has two such degrees.

(v) The competing heirs are (1) MFDSS (mother's sister's son's son) and (2) MFFDS (mother's father's sister's son). The former who has two degrees of ascent is preferred to the latter who has three such degrees.

(vi) The competing heirs are (1) MFM (mother's father's mother) and (2) FFFDSS (father's father's sister's son's son). The number of degrees of ascent in both cases is the same, viz., three, but the former has no degree of descent while the latter has three such degrees. The former is therefore preferred.

(vii) The competing heirs are (1) FMF (father's mother's father) and (2) MFF (mother's father's father). The number of degrees of ascent in both cases in the same and there are no degrees of descent. The lines of the two heirs diverge at the very first point, No. (1) being in the male line and No. (2) in the female line. No. (1) is preferred to No. (2).

(viii) The competing heirs are (1) FDSS (sister's son's son) and (2) FDDS (sister's daughter's son). The heirs are equally near both in ascent and descent. The dissimilarity in the lines occurs at the third point. At this point No. (1) is in the male line and No. (2) in the female line. No. (1) is therefore preferred.

(ix) The competing heirs are (1) FMFSS (father's mother's brother's son) and (2) FMFDS (father's mother's sister's son). The former is preferred.

(x) The competing heirs are (1) FDDS (sister's daughter's son) and (2) FDDD (sister's daughter's daughter). The former is preferred.

(xi) The competing heirs are a daughter's daughter's son of one sister (FDDDS) and a daughter's daughter's son of another sister (FDDDS). Both of them take the estate in equal shares.

Heirs not related by blood.

10. If there is no cognate entitled to succeed under section 4, the heritable property of the intestate shall devolve, in the first instance, upon his preceptor (áchárya); if there is no preceptor, upon the intestate's disciple (sishya); and if there is no disciple, upon the intestate's fellow-student (sa-brahmachárí).

Rules for hermits, etc.

11. (1) Where a person completely and finally renounces the world by becoming a hermit (vánaprastha), an ascetic (yati or sanyási), or a perpetual religious student (naishthika brahmachárí), his property shall devolve upon his heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if he had died intestate in respect thereof at the time of such renunciation.

(2) Any person who has so renounced the world shall not inherit to any relative of his, by blood or marriage, but the inheritance shall, in such a case, pass to the heir who is next in the order of succession.

(3) Any property acquired by such a person after his renunciation shall, on his death, devolve, not upon his relatives by blood or marriage, but as follows:—

(a) in the case of a hermit, upon a spiritual brother belonging to the same hermitage (dharmabhrátraikatirthí);

(b) in the case of an ascetic, upon his virtuous disciple (sacchishya);

(c) in the case of a perpetual religious student, upon his preceptor (áchárya).

Stridhana.

Right of women over stridhana.

12. A woman shall have the same rights over her stridhana, including the right to dispose of it by transfer inter vivos or by will, as a man has over property acquired by him in the like manner, that is to say, a woman's rights over her stridhana shall not be deemed to be restricted in any respect whatsoever, by reason only of her sex.

Order of succession to stridhana.

13. The stridhana of a woman dying intestate, in so far as it consists of heritable property, shall devolve as follows:—

(a) Property inherited by her from her husband shall devolve upon his heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been his and he had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after his wife's death.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this clause, property devolving on another widow of the husband, whether under this clause or under entry (9) in clause (b), shall be deemed to be property inherited by such widow from her husband.

(b) Other property shall devolve upon the following relatives of the intestate, in the order mentioned, namely:—

(1) Daughter;

(2) Daughter's daughter;

(3) Daughter's son;

(4) Son;

(5) Son's son;

(6) Son's daughter;

(7) Husband;

(8) Husband's heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been his and he had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after his wife's death;

(9) Mother;

(10) Father;

(11) Father's heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been his and he had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after his daughter's death;

(12) Mother's heirs, in the same order and according to the same rules as would have applied if the property had been hers and she had died intestate in respect thereof immediately after her daughter's death.

(c) Where of two or more heirs of the intestate, no one is entitled to be preferred to any other under the provisions of this section, they shall take together.

Stirpital succession to stridhana in certain cases.

14. If the stridhana of a woman devolves on two or more of the following relatives, namely, daughters' daughters, daughters' sons, sons' sons and sons' daughters, they shall take it per stirpes and not per capita.

Illustration.

The surviving relatives of a woman are four grand-daughters by one daughter, A, and three grand-daughters by another daughter, B. Each of A's daughters takes 1/8th of the property and each of B's daughters takes 1/6th.

General Provisions.

Full blood preferred to half blood.

15. Heirs related to an intestate by the full blood shall be preferred to heirs related by the half blood, if the nature of the relationship is the same in every other respect.

Illustrations.

(i) A brother by the full blood is preferred to a brother by the half blood; but a brother by the half blood succeeds before a brother's son by the full blood, a brother being a nearer heir than a brother's son.

(ii) A paternal uncle by the half blood is preferred to a paternal uncle's son by the full blood, an uncle being a nearer heir than an uncle's son.

(iii) A full brother's daughter's daughter is preferred to a half brother's daughter's daughter; but the former is not preferred to a half brother's daughter's son, as the nature of the relationship is not the same in the two cases. The latter, who is a nearer heir by virtue of Rule 3 in section 9, is preferred though he is only of the half blood.

Right of child in womb.

16. A person who was in the womb at the time of the death of an intestate and who is subsequently born alive shall have the same right to inherit to the intestate as if he or she had been born before the death of the intestate.

Rights of surviving spouse and descendants of a valid marriage.

17. The surviving spouse and descendants of a valid marriage contracted by a male or female Hindu outside his or her caste shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be treated in like manner as the surviving spouse and descendants of a valid marriage contracted within his or her own caste.

Disqualification of widow who was unchaste during husband's lifetime.

18. If an intestate's widow has been unchaste during his lifetime and after her marriage, she shall, unless the unchastity has been condoned by her husband, be disqualified from succeeding to his heritable property, and it shall devolve on his other heirs as it would in her absence:

Provided that the right of a widow to inherit to her husband shall not be questioned on the ground aforesaid, unless—

(a) the husband has deprived her of any portion of his property on that ground by a valid testamentary disposition subsisting at the date of his death, or

(b) a Court of Law has found her to have been unchaste as aforesaid in a proceeding to which she and her husband were parties and in which the matter was specifically in issue, the finding of the Court not having been subsequently reversed.

Murderer disqualified.

19. A person who commits murder or abets the commission of murder in furtherance of his or her succession to any property shall be disqualified from inheriting such property; and the inheritance shall, in such a case, pass to the heir who is next in the order of succession.

Disease, defect, etc., not to disqualify.

20. No person shall be disqualified from succeeding to any property on the ground of any disease, defect or deformity or, save as provided in sub-section (2) of section 11 and sections 18 and 19, on any other ground whatsoever.

Mode of succession of two or more heirs.

21. If two or more heirs succeed together to the property of any intestate, they shall take the property—

(a) save as otherwise expressly provided in this Act, per capita and not per stirpes; and (b) as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants.

Escheat.

22. If the intestate has left no heir, or no heir qualified to succeed to his or her heritable property, such property shall go to the Crown.

Repeals.

23. The enactments specified in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent mentioned in the fourth column thereof.

THE SCHEDULE.

(See section 23.)

Year.	No.	Short title.	Extent of repeal.
1	2	3	4
1928	XII ..	The Hindu Inheritance (Removal of Disabilities) Act, 1928.	The whole.
1929	II ..	The Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act, 1929.	The whole.
1937	XVIII.	The Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act, 1937.	Section 3, sub-section (1).

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In consequence of certain difficulties of interpretation arising out of the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act, 1937, and the amending Act of 1938, the Central Government appointed, in January 1941, a Committee (sometimes referred to as the Hindu Law Committee) to examine these Acts as also certain Bills introduced, or proposed to be introduced, in the Indian Legislature to amend them. The Committee made a detailed examination of the subject after eliciting public opinion by issuing a questionnaire. In June 1941 they submitted a Report unanimously recommending that the Hindu Law should be codified in successive stages, beginning with the law of succession, to be followed by the law of marriage.

The Report had a favourable reception and the recommendations contained in it were accepted by the Central Government. Accordingly, the Committee proceeded to draft a Bill on the Hindu Law of intestate succession, as the First Part of the contemplated Code. They began by preparing four memoranda on the subject, which were then circulated for criticism to prominent lawyers and other interested persons throughout India. The memoranda have been in circulation, as mentioned, since August 1941. Legal opinion has, for the most part, been very favourable, criticism being confined to certain points of detail. In the light of the criticisms received the Committee prepared a revised draft Bill which the present Bill follows with only one or two small drafting alterations. The explanatory note which follows was drawn up by the Committee and explains the main principles of the Bill as well as the provisions of each clause. The memoranda on which the Bill is based have also been printed as an Appendix to the Bill.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

Broadly speaking, the provisions of this Bill are based on the Rules for All-India at the end of the Third Memorandum and the Stridhana Rules in the Fourth Memorandum prepared by us in July 1941. For convenience of reference, all the four Memoranda are printed as an Appendix to this Bill. They were circulated to prominent lawyers and other interested persons throughout India for criticism. The opinions received were mostly favourable; where the critics suggested modifications the suggestions have been carefully considered and necessary changes made in the Bill. A study of the Memoranda will be of assistance in understanding the Bill.

The main features of the Bill are—

(1) that it embodies a common law of intestate succession for all Hindus in British India;

(2) that it removes the sex disqualification by which Hindu women in general have hitherto been precluded from inheriting property in various parts of India; and

(3) that it abolishes the Hindu woman's limited estate.

The first of these objects is proposed to be secured by adopting for the most part the Dayabhaga scheme for near succession and the Mistakshara scheme for distant succession—a compromise which, as will be clear from the Memoranda appended to the Bill, does no great violence to either school. By "near succession" we mean the comparatively near relations enumerated in clause 5 of the Bill; and by "distant succession" we mean the comparatively distant agnates and cognates not so enumerated.

The Mitakshara jurisdictions have already accepted the changes made by the legislation of 1929, giving a higher place to the son's daughter, the daughter's daughter, the sister, and the sister's son; they should find no great difficulty in accepting now a similar promotion to higher rank of certain other near relations (such as the paternal aunt's son and the maternal uncle's or aunt's son) who are included in the Dayabhaga scheme of near succession. Similarly, the Dayabhaga jurisdictions ought not to find it difficult to accept the few changes needed to assimilate the two schools in this matter. A uniform law is well worth this small price.

The sex disqualification against women inheriting property has few defenders at the present time. Nevertheless, over a large part of India, women, with a few exceptions, are still debarred by law from inheriting property, e.g., in Bengal, even today, a sister cannot inherit to her brother even if there are no other heirs. Under the Bill, she will be able to do so in her proper place. [See Class II, entry (6), amongst the heirs enumerated in clause 5.] We have not only included the nearer female relations amongst the enumerated heirs, but have also made it clear that women are included in the terms "agnate" and "cognate" and therefore in the scheme of distant succession detailed in clause 8.

As regards the Hindu woman's limited estate which the Bill seeks to abolish, it is unnecessary to repeat here what has been said in our Fourth Memorandum (see Appendix to the Bill). There is a considerable body of opinion that this particular limitation has no real basis in the Smritis. Dr. Mitter, who has discussed this question at great length in his Thesis on "The Position of Women in Hindu Law" (1913), has observed that although the doctrine has been firmly established by judicial decision, nevertheless, so far as Smriti authority goes, there is very little of it to support the theory of the limited estate of women in inherited property (loc. cit. p. 526). This agrees with the opinion of Sir M. Venkatasubba Rao quoted in our Memorandum that the doctrine is "a pure creation by judicial decisions unsupported by ancient Shastra." Dr. Jayaswal, in his Tagore Lectures of 1917 on "Manu and Yajnyavalkya" has stated that "all the commentators are equally guilty in reducing the right of the widow to a limited interest" (loc. cit. p. 236). In the earliest and probably the most important case (1826) in which the nature and extent of the widow's interest came under discussion by the Privy Council, viz., Kasinauth Bysack v. Hurrosundery Dossee, there was a difference of opinion amongst the Pundits: the Court Pundits stated that if a widow were to alienate the inherited property for other than the permitted purposes without the consent of her husband's relations, the alienation would be invalid; four other Pundits, on the other hand, stated that though she would incur moral blame, yet the act would be valid against the relations of the husband. In other words, in the opinion of these four Pundits, the Shastras have merely imposed a moral duty and not a legal limitation upon the widow even in a Dayabhaga Province. Doubtless there are opinions on the other side also, e.g., Dr. Altekar's conclusion is that while some Smritis definitely limit a woman's estate, others are merely silent on the point. ("The Position of Women in Hindu Civilisation", 1938, p. 315.) But on the whole, it seems safe to state that Smriti authority for the doctrine of the Hindu woman's limited estate is not unequivocal.

In India Muslim women, Christian women, Parsi women, and Jaina women, all take a full estate; it is difficult to maintain that Hindu women alone are incompetent to enjoy full rights. Whatever may have been the case in the past a general disability of this kind can hardly be defended at the present day, when we have women legislators, women lawyers, and women Ministers.

The most serious aspects of this disability are (1) that it is one of the most fruitful sources of litigation in our Courts today, and (2) that for the sake of protecting the property when the woman is not in real need, it penalises her when, in a time of real need, she requires all the money she can get from the sale of the property. As to (1), we have Dr. Mitter's observation that "the cases relating to the extent and nature of woman's estate which come before our Courts are more numerous than the other cases on Hindu law put together," an observation which is perhaps as true today as when he wrote. ("The Position of Women in Hindu Law", 1913, page 526.) As to (2), it may appear at first sight that as, even under the existing law, a widow has full powers of alienation for legal necessity, she ought to get full value for her property. But it is notorious that she does not; for, if the reversioners do not join in the sale, the purchaser, not being sure of the legal necessity, cannot afford to pay the full value of the property, and in most cases the reversioners will not join unless they get a share of the price. The result is that although in theory the woman has full powers of alienation in such cases, in practice she cannot realise the full value of the estate. "All purchasers from a Hindoo widow know or ought to know by this time the extreme risk of such a transaction, and if they choose to run it, and to buy, without consulting the next heirs, or without taking such further steps as would enable them at some future time, should necessity arise, to prove that they made diligent and careful enquiry as to the existence of a legal necessity before buying, they must take the consequences." [Mahomed Ashruff v. Brijassuree Dossee (1873) 19, W. R. 426.] The knowledge of this risk has, if anything, grown in the sixty or seventy years since this warning was uttered. Thus a limitation doubtless intended by its authors only to restrain waste when the owner is not in real need has in practice come to have the effect of reducing the value of her property when she is in real and urgent need.

We have considered various alternatives for remedying this mischief. One suggestion made to us is that widow, proposing to sell for legal necessity, should apply to Court and that the Court after notifying the reversioners, should grant or refuse permission. If permission is granted, it is to be deemed conclusive proof of legal necessity, so that the purchaser is completely protected. The drawback to this plan is that the Court proceedings will take time, particularly if reversioners come forward with objections. In practice this will mean that she must buy off the objectors if her need is urgent, besides incurring the inevitable expenses of a Court proceeding. Another suggestion is that the right of challenging alienations should be confined to certain relations, instead of being given to all reversioners. In practice this will mean that the widow, when in real need, will have to share the price with the selected near relations. On the whole, the best solution seems to be to put Hindu women on a par with other women in India who get full rights and to abolish the limited estate. The experience of the Jaina community, who seem to have carried the rights of the widow even further, appears to be encouraging. A writer on Jaina law states that the son in a Jaina household is placed in a subordinate position and postponed to his mother, who takes the paternal property as absolute owner and can give it away to anybody she likes. "The effect of this healthy rule is that the son has got to be well-behaved, obedient, and a model of virtue to win the favour of the mother". ("The Jaina Law" by Champak Rai Jain, 1926, page 12, foot-note.) This shows at any rate that the abolition of the limited estate need not spell disaster to the family.

We would also point out that under the scheme of the Bill, the widow, the son, and the daughter are all simultaneous heirs, the daughter getting half the share of the widow or the son. When we come to the chapter on maintenance we intend to make proper provision for the maintenance of the parents and any widowed daughters-in-law of the intestate. All the persons entitled to maintenance or to a share of the estate under the existing law being thus provided for, we do not see any danger in making the widow's estate absolute.

We shall now notice in detail the more important clauses of the Bill.

Clause 1 (3).—The Act is intended to come into force on January 1, 1946. This date of commencement is suggested (a) in order to give Governors' Provinces sufficient time to pass complementary legislation in respect of agricultural land; (b) in order to give the Hindu community sufficient time to adjust itself to the proposed changes; and (c) in order to give the Central Legislature sufficient time to codify other branches of Hindu law so that there may be an entire Hindu Code in operation from January 1, 1946.

Clause 2.—Sub-clause (1) (a) and (b).—The definitions of "agnate" and "cognate" must be read with clause 4 which lays down that in certain events agnates succeed before cognates to the property of a male intestate Hindu. We have added a provision in clause 2 (2) (b) to make it clear that a woman, even if married, is to be regarded as an agnate of her father and of his agnates. She will therefore inherit as an agnate in the family of her birth. This provision merely embodies an extension of the principle upon which a sister has been given a place among the gotrajas or agnates of her brother by the Mayukha in Bombay and by the legislation of 1929 in other Mitakshara jurisdictions.

We are aware that, according to Hindu ideas, a girl, upon marriage, is deemed to be re-born in the gotra of her husband. Strictly speaking, therefore, she is a gotraja of her father until marriage and of her husband after marriage. In fact, on this basis we framed a rule for the succession of the widow of a gotraja sapinda in our original proposals (see, for example, Rule 8 of the Rules for All-India in our Third Memorandum); but the rule has been heavily criticized as being of a type peculiar to the Bombay school and unknown to any other system of law in the world. In deference to this criticism we have omitted the rule; under the Bill, therefore, she will have the right to succeed as an agnate in her father's family but not in her husband's. Except in Bombay, she has, generally speaking, no such right in either family under the existing law; and in Bombay she has at present such a right in her husband's family, but not in her father's. Even as regards Bombay, the provision in the Bill has the advantage that she is less likely to be disinherited (by will) by a blood-relation than by a relation by marriage. In certain other respects also she gets much better rights under the Bill than she enjoys at present, whether in Bombay or elsewhere: she not only gets a share of her father's property, but also a very high place as an heir to her grandfather, whether paternal or maternal In view of these compensations, and for the sake of uniformity, we consider that the Bombay school might well accept the provisions of the Bill.

Sub-clause (1) (d).—This sub-clause defines "heritable property". What property is heritable and what is not is a question with which the law of intestate succession as such is not concerned; it is only concerned with laying down how property is to devolve if it is heritable. In other words, if the nature of the property is such that it passes, upon the owner's death, to his heirs, the law of intestate succession lays down who are to be considered the heirs. Whether the property is of this character or not must be dealt with elsewhere. Thus the interest of an undivided coparcener in a Mitakshara joint family is not, under common Hindu Law, "heritable property", since it passes not to his heirs but to his surviving coparceners. The position may have been changed by the Deshmukh Act, but the question is not intended to be dealt with in the present Bill; it will be dealt with when the question of the Mitakshara joint family comes under consideration.

The words "which belongs to an intestate in his or her own right" have been inserted for the purpose of making it clear that property vesting in any person as a trustee or in some similar capacity is not heritable property.

Sub-clause (1)(e).—This sub-clause is not meant to make any change in the existing position as to the application of Hindu law.

Sub-clause (1)(g).—The definition of "full blood" and "half blood" is in accord with what we believe to be the Hindu law on the subject: "among brothers, such as are of the whole blood take the inheritance in the first instance . ..., since those of the half blood are remote through the difference of the mothers" (Mitakshara, Chapter II, Section IV, 5—Setlur's Collection).

Sub-clause (1)(h).—The terms here used are well-established Sanskrit expressions used in Hindu law which we have thought it unnecessary to translate. The (dásiputra" is the son of a "dasi", that is, a Hindu concubine in the continuous and exclusive keeping of his father. Under the existing Hindu law, he has a peculiar position, being entitled to certain rights of inheritance amongst Sudras, but only to maintenance amongst the other castes. We propose to remove this distinction and to exclude him from inheritance amongst Sudras as well.

The other terms "dattaka", "dwyámushyáyana", and "kritrima" describe various forms of adoption. For purposes of inheritance we propose, generally speaking, to put all these adopted sons on the same footing as aurasa sons of the adopter, although with certain differences as to the effect of adoption on their previous or natural ties. In the case of the "dattaka" son, the effect of adoption is to sever the natural tie altogether for purpose of inheritance; in the case of the dwyámushyáyana and the kritrima sons, the natural tie continues side by side with the tie created by adoption; but in the case of the kritrima son, the latter tie extends no further than to the person adopted and the person or persons adopting. Thus the son of a kritrima son cannot inherit as a grandson of the adopter, nor can the Kritrima son himself inherit as a grandson of the adopter's father. The tie created by this from of adoption is limited to the adoptee and the adopter. All this is made clear in the provision included in clause 2(2)(d). It merely embodies the existing Hindu law on the subject. We have not thought it necessary to distinguish between a "nityadatta dwyámushyáyana" and an "anityadatta dwyámushyáyana" because the latter is now obsolete. (See Mayne, 10th Edition, p. 280). It is worth considering whether the law should not be further simplified by putting all adopted sons, whatever the form of adoption, on the same footing as natural-born sons for purposes of reckoning relationship.

As already stated we propose to abolish the distinction between an adopted son and an aurasa or natural-born son for purposes of inheritance. Rules of intestate succession should be as simple as possible. Variations to meet individual cases may well be left to the individual owner to make by will. When, as in ancient Hindu law, wills were unknown, it might have been necessary to insist upon every shade of difference between one sort of heir and another. But now that wills have become a recognised part of Hindu law it is possible to simplify the rules of intestate succession without hardship to anybody.

Hindu law treats an adopted son as entitled to inherit just as if he were a natural-born son except when a son is actually born after the adoption. When, however, a son is born after adoption, he (i.e., the after-born son) usually gets the larger share of the father's property, the relative shares of the two sons being different in the different schools of law. In Bengal, the adopted son usually takes one-third of the father's estate, in Benares, one-fourth, in Bombay and Madras, one-fifth; but amongst Sudras in Madras and Bengal, an adopted son shares equally with an after-born son. Not only do the texts on this subject differ, but the same text has been interpreted in different ways in different parts of India. Further complications are likely to arise when there are other competing heirs. However, as the result of the Deshmukh Act, which gives the widow equal rights of succession with a son (in accordance with a principle which we believe to be in the true spirit of Hindu law), it is probable that adoptions will become increasingly rare in future and the time therefore seems ripe for doing away with these complicated distinctions between adopted sons and "after-born" sons. No such distinctions appear to be recognized in the text of Vriddha Gautama cited in the Dattaka-Mimamsa, Section V, 43: "A given son (i.e., an adopted son) abounding in good qualities existing: should a legitimate son be born at any time, let both be equal sharers of the father's whose estate." There appears to be nothing in this text to restrict the rule laid down therein to any particular caste. Thus, according to this text, there is no difference (whether amongst dwijas or others) between the shares of the adopted son and an "after-born" son, if the adopted son "abounds in good qualities", a condition which is presumably satisfied in every adoption (see Manu IX, 168-169) and upon which Courts cannot, in any case, be expected to pronounce. It must be remembered that a dattaka son loses all his future rights in the family of his birth as a consequence of the adoption and it seems hardly fair that he should ever count as anything less than a natural-born son in the family of his adoption.

Sub-clause (1)(i).—In framing the definition of "Stridhana" we have followed Vijnaneswara. Our reasons for doing so have been fully explained in our Memorandum on the subject appended to the Bill

Sub-clause (2)—opening words.—The usual rule in construing statutes is briefly that "he" includes "she". In the drafting of this Bill we have had to be stricter in the use of words, since in the existing Hindu law woman's property differs from man's as regards the order of succession and in certain other respects.

Sub-clause (2)(a).—The definition of intestacy is taken from section 30 of the Indian Succession Act, 1925.

Sub-clause (2)(c).—This merely adopts by reference certain well-established rules relating to domicile contained in the Indian Succession Act, which do not at present apply to Hindus.

Clause 3.—In making the Bill applicable to the movable property of Hindus domiciled in British India and (with certain exceptions) to the immovable property in British India of all Hindus wherever domiciled, we are merely following a well-established rule of private international law. A similar provision is to be found in section 5 of the Indian Succession Act.

Following the principle of section 19 of the Indian Succession Act we have made the Bill applicable to the movable property of a person not proved to have been domiciled outside British India.

We have, for obvious reasons, exclude Hindus governed by the Marumakkattayam, Aliyasantana or Nambudri Law of Inheritance.

In clause (i) of the first proviso to the clause we have excluded agricultural land, because the Central Legislature cannot legislate upon succession in respect of agricultural land situated in Governors' Provinces. If and when Governors' Provinces enact complementary legislation in respect of agricultural land, it may be necessary for the Centre also to enact parallel legislation for the Chief Commissioners' Provinces in a similar form.

Clause (ii) of the first proviso excludes impartible estates. The subject of impartible estates constitutes a separate branch of Hindu law and must be dealt with separately.

It will be seen that the Bill is intended to regulate succession to the property of Hindus dying after the date of its commencement. What is to happen if the last full owner died before the aforesaid date but was succeeded by a limited owner who died after that date? The second proviso makes it clear that in such a case the reversioners will be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Bill, as if the full owner had died immediately after the limited owner.

Clause 4 repeats in substance one of the rules for All-India at the end of our Third Memorandum.

Clause 5.—We have made some important changes in this clause as compared with the corresponding provision in our Third Memorandum. Under our original plan, the unmarried daughter and the widowed daughter-in-law were to share equally with the son and the widow, the married daughter getting no share. But the exclusion of the married daughter has been criticised by lawyers of weight, and is opposed to the view of the majority of those who answered our questionnaire last year. They considered that there should be no distinction between the married and the unmarried daughter in the matter of inheritance. We have accordingly proposed in the Bill that each daughter, whether married or unmarried, should get half the share of a son. The general opinion even among women (judging from the answers to our questionnaire) appears to be that the daughter's share should be half that of a son. Dr. Altekar after an elaborate discussion of the question expresses a similar view ("The Position of Women in Hindu Civilisation", 1938, pages 278-299), although he considers that the daughter should lose her share upon marriage. We have already explained why we have abandoned the distinction between married and unmarried daugters. We would add that a provision that the daughter should forfeit her inheritance upon marriage is liable to be attacked on the grounds that it can be defeated by a prior alienation, that it is a temptation to avoid marriage and live "in sin", and so forth.

Turning to Smrti authority, we find certain rules as to the portion to be given to the daughter at a partition of the paternal estate; but they are not quite clear. According to Yajnyavalkya and Manu, the sons have to give the daughter a "one-fourth" share, but there have been differences of opinion as to how this "one-fourth" is to be calculated. Manu's text, literally translated, runs:

> "The brothers should severally give to their maiden sisters out of their own shares, each a one-fourth part out of his share; those refusing to give shall be degraded." (IX, 118).

On a strict construction of this text, it would follow that if there were three sons and one daughter, each son would in the first instance take a one-third share and would then have to give one-fourth of that share to the daughter, so that the final result would be that each of the three sons and the daughter would have one-fourth. In this particular case, therefore, the daughter's share would be equal to that of the sons. If there were two sons and one daughter, the distribution would be 3/8ths for each son and 1/4th for the daughter, so that the daughter's share would be 2/3rds of the son's; and so on. The result would be different in different cases according to the number of sons and daughters. Vijnaneswara's interpretation of the "one-fourth" share is that the daughter should have 1/4th of what she would have got if she had been a son. According to Sukrasmriti (circa. 1300 A.D.), if a person divides his property in his own lifetime, he should assign one share each to his wife and sons, half a share to his daughters, and one-fourth of a share to his daughters' sons; but if the division takes place after his death, the sister is to get one-eighth the share of the brother.

Since Smriti authority is not clear and since there is a general trend of opinion that the daughter's share should be half that of a son, we have thought it best to give the unmarried daughter as well as the married daughter a share equal to one-half of that of a son.

This has made it necessary to re-consider the question of the widowed daughter-in-law. It will be remembered that under the Deshmukh Act, she shares equally with the widow and the son; and this was also what we proposed in our Third Memorandum. But now that we are providing for her as a daughter in her own father's family, it seems unnecessary to provide for her again in her father-in-law's family. She will, of course, continue to take a share of her husband's property as his widow; it is only the further share in her father-in-law's property that we have thought it unnecessary to give her, in view of the share which she will now get in her father's property. As between a share in her father-in-law's property and a share in her father's property, we believe the latter to be more secure, because there is less chance of the provision being defeated by a will. A father-in-law is more likely to disinherit his daughter-in-law than a father his daughter.

We have worked out the details of a concrete case, typical of its kind, for the purpose of seeing how the provisions of the Bill compare with our original proposals in the Third Memorandum. Let us suppose that A, the daughter of B, is married to C, the son of D, and, since we have to take a case involving widowed daughters-in-law, let us suppose that C dies first, then D and then B. To make the test a fair one, we must assume that each of them dies leaving a widow, a son, a widowed daughter-in-law, an unmarried daughter and a married daughter, and also that they are all equally rich. For simplifying the calculations, let us assume that they each leave property worth Rs. 12,000.

Then upon C's death, A, as his widow, gets, under the bill, one-third of Rs. 12,000, i.e., Rs. 4,000 (C's son getting Rs. 4,000 and each of his daughters getting Rs. 2,000). Under our original proposals A would have got one-fourth of C's property, i.e., Rs. 3,000 (C's son, C's widowed daughter-in-law and his unmarried daughter each getting Rs. 3,000).

Upon D's death, A, as his daughter-in-law, gets nothing under the Bill, the daughter-in-law not being an heir; under our original proposals she would have got one-fourth of his property, i.e., Rs. 3,000.

Upon B's death, A, as his daughter, gets under the Bill half of a third of his property, i.e., Rs. 2,000. Under our original proposals, not being an unmarried daughter, she would have got nothing.

The net result is that in all she gets Rs. 6,000 under the Bill (Rs. 4,000 from her husband plus Rs. 2,000 from her father) and she would have got the same sum under our original proposals also (Rs. 3,000 from her husband plus Rs. 3,000 from her father-in-law). Thus from the point of view of the daughter-in-law, the scheme of the Bill is on balance at least as good as our original plan, quite apart from the possibility of her being disinherited by her father-in-law. We have also little doubt that an owner of property, if asked to choose between a scheme which gives a share to his daughter and one which gives a share to his daughter-in-law, would normally prefer the former.

On the whole, therefore, we think that the changes made in the Bill in this respect are an improvement. In addition, we would suggest that when the subject of maintenance is taken up, the obligation of a father-in-law to maintain his widowed daughter-in-law, which is at present merely a moral obligation, be changed into a legal obligation. The combined effect of such a provision and the provisions which we have embodied in this Bill would be that instead of a precarious right of inheritance of a son's share in her father-in-law's property upon his death, she would get (a) the certainty of maintenance during his life and (b) a reasonable certainty of half of a son's share in her father's property.

If, however, our original scheme or the scheme of the Deshmukh Act is preferred to the scheme of the Bill, there would be no difficulty in making the necessary amendments.

In our original rules there was one relating to widows which provided that a woman who is a widow when succession opens (excepting the widow of the deceased himself) shall take the place which her husband would have occupied in the order of succession if he had been alive at the time. This rule, if retained, would have obviated the necessity of enumerating separately, amongst the heirs, the mother or the father's mother or the mother's mother or the father's father's mother of the intestate. But there has been much opposition to the rule and we have, therefore, abandoned it. Consequently, it is now necessary to mention these relations separately and we have had to consider whether in this enumeration the mother should come after the father, the grandmother after the grandfather, and so on. Yajnyavalkya mentions father and mother together (Pitarau, that is, parents) without specifying which parent is to come first; the Mitakshara puts the mother first; the Mayukha and the Dayabhaga put the father first; Srikara is of opinion that both parents are meant to take jointly. The point does not appear to be of cardinal importance in normal circumstances. But on general considerations it would seem that the mother should come before the father as an heir to the son because, if the father happens to have married a second and younger wife, there is a chance of the deceased's own mother suffering. We have, therefore, in this instance, preferred the Mitakshara order. On similar grounds we have put the father's mother before the father's father, the mother's mother before the mother's father and the father's father's mother before the father's father's father. In so doing we have followed the spirit of Brihaspati's rule that in all cases of a conflict between two texts of law, equity should be resorted to.

The high place given to the son's daughter and the daughter's daughter needs a word of explanation. These are grandchildren of the intestate himself and cannot in justice be separated from his other grandchildren, the son's son and the daughter's son. They have accordingly been placed immediately after the latter.

We have not enumerated in Class I of clause 5 the son's son's daughter, the son's daughter's son, the son's daughter's daughter, the daughter's son's son, the daughter's son's daughter, or the daughter's daughter's daughter. If they are to be included—and there are many who think that they ought to be—they should come in the above order immediately after the daughter's daughter in Class I. That is their logical place, as they are all descendants of the intestate, and the usual rule is that his own descendants should be preferred to his ancestors or their descendants. We have made it clear elsewhere that provision should be made in the proper place for the maintenance of the intestate's aged parents, whoever may inherit the estate. Similarly, there is something to be said for including the brother's daughter and the sister's daughter amongst the enumerated heirs; if they are to be included, they may be placed in that order immediately after the sister's son in Class II.

As explained in our Third Memorandum, if we omit the female heirs enumerated in this clause (clause 5) the enumeration is identical, both in order and content, with Jimutavahana's as interpreted by G. C. Sarkar. The female heirs are either those enumerated by Jimutavahana himself or those mentioned in Act II of 1929 re-arranged in order of propinquity. We have also added the mother's mother, as all the other grandparents are heirs.

Clause 6—merely embodies one of the rules in our Third Memorandum and needs no further explanation.

Clause 7—prescribes the mode of distribution of an intestate's property amongst his widow or widows, his sons and his daughters.

Sub-clause (b), it will be noticed, makes no distinction between divided and undivided sons. On this point there has been a conflict of judicial decision and we have adopted the view which leads to the simplest rule.

Sub-clause (d) abolishes the distinction which at present obtains between daughters, married and unmarried, or rich and poor, or with and without male issue, or the possibility of male issue. This is in accordance with the desire of the majority of those who answered our questionnaire on this point last year.

Clause 8.—This clause deals with what we have called "distant succession". The distinction between agnates and cognates goes back to Yajnyavalkya and has, therefore, been retained in the Bill. But for this traditional distinction, we should have been strongly inclined to put into a single class all relations outside the enumerated heirs and to subject them to the general Rules of Preference set out in clause 9. This would have simplified the law still further and made it more equitable.

Clause 9.—These general rules have had wide approval. They have been fully explained in our First Memorandum (see Appendix to the Bill). We have there pointed out how these rules not only flow from the indications that Vijnaneswara has given on the subject, but also yield results in accordance with the decided cases. We would only add here that these rules can be applied with equal ease, whether the distinction between agnates and cognates is abolished or retained. In deference to the wishes of certain critics we have inserted provisions in the Bill explaining how degrees are to be computed. See clause 8, sub-clauses (2) and (3). We think that the Rules of Preference embodied in the Bill will considerably simply the law of Bandhu succession. We have given a large number of illustrations in this clause for the purpose of elucidating the application of the rules.

Clauses 10 and 11.—These clauses follow the well-known rules of the Hindu Law on the subject and need no explanation. If they are considered unnecessary, they can be left out.

Clauses 12 and 13.—These substantially follow the corresponding provisions in our Fourth Memorandum and need little explanation. For the sake of uniformity we have adopted in the main the Mitakshara order of devolution for stridhana as explained in our Memorandum. It will be noticed that in the case of the property of a Hindu male dying intestate, his widow and his son each get one share and his daughter half a share. The widow's share becomes her stridhana under the definition in clause 2 (1) (i) of the Bill; but upon her death it descends to the son and the daughter in the proportion of 1 : ½ under clause 13 (a). In view of this provision, the preference given to the daughter in respect of other portions of her mother's stridhana might, we think, be accepted by all schools in the interests of uniformity.

In response to criticisms we have made four small changes in our original proposals. (1) In our original proposals we had a rule that property inherited by a woman from a male owner shall on her death devolve upon the heirs of that owner.

In response to criticisms from Bombay we have confined the corresponding provision in the Bill to property inherited by a woman from her husband. (2) For reasons already mentioned we have abolished the distinction between married and unmarried daughters. Under our original proposals, which strictly followed the Mitakshara order, the unmarried daughter was the first heir to her mother's stridhana, and then came the married daughter. We have now put all daughters, whether married or unmarried, first in the list of stridhana heirs. (3) The son's daughter does not at present appear to be a stridhana heir at all; but a daughter's daughter, a daughter's son, and a son's son are all heirs. It is not easy to see any justification for the exclusion of the son's daughter and we have accordingly included her as an heir immediately after the son's son. (4) The daughter's husband was included in our original proposals as a stridhana heir in accordance with Brihaspati's text (Brihaspati XXV, 88 and 89). In response to criticism from Madras, we have now omitted this heir.

Clause 14—provides for stirpital succession to stridhana in certain cases. It makes no change in the existing Hindu Law.

Clauses 15 and 16.—These embody existing provisions of the Hindu Law.

Clause 17.—There have been differences of opinion whether anuloma marriages, that is to say, marriages where the husband is of higher caste than the wife, are or are not valid. It is unnecessary to discuss this question here in any detail; but it may be mentioned that such marriages were not uncommon amongst Hindus until about the 10th century A.D. Baudhayana, Vishnu, Manu, Yajnyavalkya and Brihaspati all lay down rules for determining the shares of sons born of wives of different castes, which in itself is proof that such marriages were then sufficiently common to need legislating for. Indeed, even later, the authors of the Mitakshara (11th century A.D.) and the Dayabhag (14th century A.D.) expressly recognize the validity of these marriages (Mitakshara Ch. I, Section VIII, 2 and Section XI, 40; Dayabhaga Ch. IX, 2, Setlur's Collection). There is, however, no doubt that inter-caste marriages have been included amongst things not to be practised in the Kali age in some of the Puranas and are now regarded as invalid in certain parts of India. But where they are regarded as valid, as in Bombay (I. L. R. 55 B 1), it is, to say the least, an unnecessary complication to treat either the widow or the issue as having inferior rights of succession.

In the first place, the Smritis are not in entire agreement as to the relative shares of the sons of the different wives. Thus, according to Vishnu, if a Brahmin has only one son, whether by a Brahmin or a Kshatriya or a Vaisya wife, that son inherits the entire property of the father; but if by a Sudra wife, he inherits only half the property of the father. According to Manu, however, "whether the man have sons or have no sons, no more than a tenth part must be given to the son of the Sudra wife", while according to Devala, the only son of a Brahmin, by a Sudra wife, is entitled to a third part of the father's property. Jimutavahana attempts to reconcile these discrepant texts by suggesting that the larger share is claimable where the son is endowed with "science, morality, and virtue", a difficult test for Courts to adopt. Again according to Vishnu, if a Brahmin has a son by a Kshatriya wife, the shares of the two sons are to be as 4 : 3; but Brihaspati directs that the son of a Kshatriya wife, if elder by birth and endowed with superior qualities, shall have an equal share with the son of the Brahmini. Similarly Baudhayana lays down that of the sons by a woman of the same caste and by one of the next inferior caste, if the latter be the more virtuous, he may take the allotment of an eldest son. Thus virtue is made the test and not the caste of the mother.

In the second place, merely because the parents have entered into an anuloma union, it is hardly just to punish their children by depriving them of their ordinary rights of inheritance. If the union is legally valid, it should not entail any legal disabilities, particularly to the innocent children.

In the third place, when, e.g., Kayasthas are held by one High Court to be Sudras and by another to be Kshatriyas, any law based on these distinctions of caste might prove anomalous in its practical operation.

For all these reasons, the simplest course is to put all legal marriages on the same footing as respects the legal rights of the parties and their issue. If a marriage is legally valid, it should entail no legal disabilities either to the parties or to the children.

Clause 18.—Clause 18 deals with the unchastity disqualification of widows. This point was noticed in paragraph 11 (ii) and paragraph 24 of the Hindu Law Committee's Report. The provision in the Bill embodies the compromise referred to in the aforesaid paragraph 24. As explained in our Report, the proviso to this clause has been considered necessary for the purpose of preventing widows being blackmailed by unscrupulous reversioners.

Clause 19—embodies a principle of the existing law resting on considerations of public policy.

Clause 20.—The time has now arrived for abolishing the other disqualifications of Hindu law such as congenital blindness, deafness, etc. The legislation of 1928 has already abolished them in part in the Mitakshara jurisdictions; they might now, we think, be abolished completely everywhere. They are difficult to justify in equity, and with the progress of medical science it must become increasingly difficult to say what defects or diseases are incurable. If the heir is incapable of managing his property there are ample provisions in the law at present for the appointment of a competent manager or guardian.

Clause 21.—Sub-clause (a) merely embodies the existing Hindu law. Sub-clause (b) makes a change in the existing Hindu law in certain respects. Under the existing Hindu law whether of the Dayabhaga school or of any Mitakshara school, where two or more widows inherit to their husband or, except in the Bombay Presidency, where two or more daughters inherit to their father, they take as joint tenants with rights of survivorship. Now that we propose to give these heirs an absolute estate, it seems to us that they should take as tenants in common as daughters do in the Bombay Presidency when inheriting to their father.

Clause 22.—Clause 22 provides for escheat to the Crown in the absence of heirs.

Clause 23.—It will be noticed from the Schedule of Repeals that we propose in this Bill only to repeal sub-section (1) of section 3 of Act XVIII of 1937. Sub-section (2) of section 3 of that Act deals with the interest of an undivided coparcener in a Mitakshara joint family, a subject which is not covered by the present Bill. We have therefore left intact the provisions of the aforesaid sub-section (2) and the other connected provisions of that Act.

APPENDIX.

First Memorandum.

INTESTATE SUCCESSION.

Mitakshara School.

1. It is convenient to deal first with the succession of males to the property of males, as regulated by the Mitakshara unmodified by Statute Law.

2. When a Hindu male governed by the Mitakshara school dies intestate in respect of heritable property, it devolves in the following order on the following classes of relations (omitting females for the moment):—

I.—The "compact series" of heirs, namely,

(1) son, son of pre-deceased son, and son of pre-deceased son's pre-deceased son (succeeding simultaneously),

(4) daughter's son,

(5) father,

(6) brother,

(7) brother's son.

(We end the "compact series" with the brother's son, because after that the Bombay school diverges from the others.)

II.—Gotrajas or agnates of the deceased, (i.e., persons related to him wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I.

III.—Bandhus or cognates of the deceased, (i.e., persons related to him, but not wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I (i.e., other than the daughter's son).

Each class excludes the next and within each class, the heirs who come earlier in order exclude those who come later.

3. To complete this scheme it is necessary to arrange all the agnates and cognates in classes II and III in a definite order, so that we may be able to tell at once which of two competing heirs has the better right of succession. We must also consider the question of setting some limit to the number of possible heirs in each class. On these points the law cannot yet be said to be settled; there are still some differences of opinion between the various High Courts. We may settle it now thus.

4. Arrangement of heirs in classes II and III.—The following rules are simple to apply; they agree with such indications as the author of the Mitakshara has given on this subject; and they yield results sufficiently accurate for all practical purposes. They have the further advantage that they are exhaustive in the sense that they furnish a decisive test in every imaginable case.

Rule 1.—Of two heirs, the one who is nearer in ascent succeeds first

Illustration.—Suppose the competing heirs are (1) the father's son's son's son (FSSS) and (2) the father's father's son's son (FFSS) of the deceased. The first is removed from the deceased by one degree in ascent and three degrees in descent—four in all; the latter by two degrees in ascent and two in descent—also four in all But since the former is nearer in ascent, he succeeds under this rule This agrees with the decision in Buddha Singh v. Laltu Singh, 42, I. A. 208.

An amplified form of the rule is that the descendants of the deceased himself succeed before those of his father; those of his father before those of his grandfather; those of his grandfather before those of his great-grandfather; and generally those of a near ancestor before those of a remoter ancestor.

For brevity, the ascending links may be represented by the symbols F (father) and M (Mother), and the descending links by S (son) and D (daughter). Thus FMFSSDS will stand for the father's mother's father's son's son's daughter's son of the deceased owner. There are three ascending links and four descending links in this chain.

Rule 2.—If the two heirs are equally near in ascent, the one who is nearer in descent succeeds first.

Illustration.—Suppose the competing heirs are (1) the father's father's son (FFS) and (2) the father's father's son's son (FFSS). Here both are two degrees in ascent from the deceased; but the former being only one degree in descent succeeds before the latter who is two degrees in descent.

Rule 3.—If the two heirs are equally near both in ascent and descent, the one who is in the father's line of ascent succeeds first.

Illustration.—Suppose the competing heirs are (1) the father's mother's father's son's son (FMFSS) and (2) the father's father's father's daughter's son (FFFDS) of the deceased. Here both are three degrees from the deceased in ascent and two in descent; but the latter being in the father's line of ascent throughout succeeds before the former who is in mother's line after the first link. The rules must be applied at each point of ascent. Thus suppose the competition is between (1) the father's mother's father's father's daughter's son (FMFFDS) and (2) the father's mother's mother's father's son's son (FMMFSS). Here the first link in the chain of ascent is in both cases in the father's line and the second link in the mother's line; up to this point, therefore, the lines are the same. But after that, the first link in the case of No. (1) is in the father's line and in the case of No. (2) in the mother's line. Therefore, No. (1) succeeds before No. (2) under this rule.

Rule 4.—If all the preceding rules fail to decide between the two heirs, the one who is in the son's line of descent succeeds first.

Illustration.—Suppose the competing heirs are (1) the father's mother's father's father's son's son's son (FMFFSSS) and (2) the father's mother's father's father's son's daughter's son (FMFFSDS). Here, rules 1, 2 and 3 are all inconclusive; but the former heir is in the son's line of descent throughout, while the latter is in the daughter's line after the first descending link. Therefore, the former succeeds before the latter.

5. In essence the tests are only two: first, that of number, applied successively to the links of ascent and the links of descent, and secondly, that of sex applied similarly—resulting altogether in four simple rules.

6. These rules must be applied in the order mentioned above and by their very nature, they are bound to yield a definite result in every imaginable case. To see how they work, let us apply them to some of the decided cases of class III:—

(a) Muthusami v. Muthukumarasami, 23 I. A. 83.—The competing heirs were (1) the mother's father's son (MFS) and (2) the father's father's father's daughter's son (FFFDS). Here rule 1 immediately decides the issue in favour of No. (1), who has only two degrees of ascent against three of his rival. The result is in accordance with the decision both of the Madras High Court and the Privy Council.

(b) Adit Narayan v. Mahabir Prasad, 48 I. A. 86.—The competition was between (1) MFDSS (mother's father's daughter's son's son) and (2) MFFDS (mother's father's father's daughter's son of the deceased. Here again (1) has only two degrees of ascent against three of (2) and therefore must succeed. This agrees with the Privy Council decision (reversing that of the Patna High Court).

(c) Balusamy v. Narayana, 20 Mad. 342.—FDSS succeeds before MFSS, which accords with our first rule, since the former has only one degree of ascent against two of the latter.

(d) Krishna Ayyangar v. Venkatarama Ayyangar, 29 Mad. 115.—FFDDS succeeds before FFFDS, which follows from our first rule.

(e) Dattatraya v. Gangabai, 46 Bom. 541.—SDS succeeds before FDD; our first rule gives the same result, since the former has no degrees of ascent at all against one of the latter.

(f) Kalimuthu v. Ammamuthu, 58 Mad. 238.—Succession opened before the commencement of Act II of 1929. Held that DDS succeeds before FDS, which follows from our first rule.

(g) Uma Shankar v. Mst. Nageshvari, 3 Pat. L. J. 663.—The competition was between MFS and FDDS. The Patna High Court held by a majority of three to two that MFS succeeds before FDDS, a decision which, according to Sarvadhikari's Hindu Law of Inheritance, is not correct (1922 Edition, pages 621, 635) and which has again been criticized by Sir Vepa Ramesam (retired Judge, Madras High Court), in the Madras Law Journal (Golden Jubilee Number, 1941, page 34). Our first rule gives preference to FDDS.

(h) Sham Devi v. Birbhadra Prasad, 43 All. 463. In this case the Allahabad High Court held that FFDSS succeeds before FDDS, whereas our first rule indicates the contrary. Mulla considers that the case was erroneously decided (Mulla's Hindu Law, 1940, pages 61, 63).

(i) Vedachela v. Subramania, 48 I. A. 349.—MFS v. FFDSS. Here our first rule is inconclusive, as the degrees of ascent are two in both cases. So we must apply the test of number to the links of descent under our second rule. MFS having only one link of descent must succeed before FFDSS who has three such links. The result is in accord with the Privy Council decision (reversing the decision of the Madras High Court).

(j) Jotindra Nath Roy v. Nagendra Nath Roy, 58 I. A. 372.—The competition was between FFDS and MFDS. Here, our first and second rules are inconclusive; so we must apply the test of sex to the links of ascent under our third rule. The result is that FFDS must succeed before MFDS, which accords with the decision in the case.

(k) Tirumalacharlar v. Andal Ammal, 30 Mad. 406.—The competition was between DSS and DDS. Here, there are no links of ascent in either case and three links of descent in each. So the first three rules are inconclusive and we must apply the fourth rule, which at once shows that DSS (who is in the son's line of descent from the daughter) must succeed before DDS (who is in the daughter's line of descent from the daughter). The result is in accord with the decision in the case.

(l) Rami Reddi v. Gangi Reddi, 48 Mad. 772, and Ram Charan Lal v. Rahim Baksh, 38 All. 416.—MFSS was held to succeed before MFDS, which is in accordance with our fourth rule; but they were held to be entitled to succeed equally in Rajappa v. Gangappa, 47 Bom. 48. The correctness of this last decision has, however, been doubted in Mulla's Hindu Law (1940, p. 61).

7. It will be seen from the above summary of the decided cases that the rules suggested by us give the right result in almost every instance and that in the rare instances where they give a result differing from the actual decision, the correctness of the decision has already been doubted on other grounds by authorities of weight. We have also compared the result of applying our rules with the table of atmabandhus as set out in Mulla's Hindu Law (1940, pp. 62-64): there is agreement in 50 cases out of 56.

8. We venture to think that the cases of difference are not of much practical importance; indeed as regards one of them (No. 28 of Mulla's table), the author himself observes that the place given to this heir in his table is highly anomalous and that it is futile to discuss the question until it actually arises. One deviation from the table, though remote and not likely to be of practical importance, may be specially mentioned. According to our rules, MFS comes before FFDS and similarly MFFS before FFFDS; but while the former result agrees with the table in Mulla's Hindu Law, the latter does not. Mulla puts FFFDS, as a pitribandhu before MFFS as a matribandhu. Neither our result nor Mulla's follows directly from the meagre indications on this subject contained in the Mitakshara.

The actual instances mentioned by Vijnaneswara are:—

FFDS MFDS MFSS	Atmabandhus (a)
FFFDS FMFDS FMFSS	Pitribandhus (b)
MFFDS MMFDS MMFSS	Matribandhus (c)

and he observes that "by reason of near affinity", the order of succession is first (a) then (b), and lastly (c). It will be noticed that all the heirs mentioned have the same number of links of descent (namely, two), but not the same number of links of ascent. In these cases it is obvious from Vijnaneswara's solution, that he gives precedence first to those with the fewest links of ascent (namely, the atmabandhus) and next to those in the male line of ascent (namely, the pitribandhus). The case of MFFS v. FFFDS is not directly covered by these examples; it is, in fact, their converse, because we have here the same number of links in ascent but different in descent. The same principles can, however, be applied; that is to say, we must give precedence first to the heir with the fewer links of descent and if that test fails we must give preference to the male line in descent. The governing principle laid down by Vijnaneswara, even in the instances given by him, is that of "near affinity" (antarangatwa). It is therefore in accord with his principles to hold that MFFS has a higher place than FFFDS, since the former is nearer in descent and no further in ascent than the latter. It is also in accord with Brihaspati's text "where many claim the inheritance of a childless man, whether they be paternal or maternal relations or more distant kinsmen, he who is the nearest of them shall take the estate". (Brihaspati XXV 62). Since we have to generalise in any case from Vijnaneswara's few hints, a generalisation which yields simple rules is obviously preferable to any other.

9. So far we have been considering the working of these rules mainly as regards heirs of class III (cognates). As regards class II (agnates), only rules 1 and 2 are relevant and they are sufficient, they are identical in effect with the two rules enunciated at the end of s. 43 of Mulla's Hindu Law (1940, p. 44), and they seem to give the correct order in every case of male succession in the Bombay Presidency. (Mulla's Hindu Law, 1940, pp. 80-84). There appear to be some differences between the Bombay and the other sub-schools of the Mitakshara as regards the order of the remoter agnates: e.g., in Madras FFFSSS appears to be preferred to FFSSSS or even to FSSSS (Soobramiah v. Natarajan, 53 Mad. 61) while the Bombay order is FSSSS (No. 24 in the table at pp. 80-84 of Mulla's Hindu Law, 1940), FFSSSS (No. 38 loc. cit.) and FFFSSS (No. 52 loc. cit.). The Bombay order follows the normal rule that the descendants of a near ancestor succeed before those of a remoter one. We feel justified in ignoring these minor differences in the interests of uniformity.

10. One point calls for some notice at this stage. The application of our first rule to all agnates (class II) will in theory result in preference being given to FSSSSSSS, a samanodaka, over FF and some other sapindas, the former having only one degree of ascent and the latter more than one. We could, if necessary, avoid this theoretical result by subdividing class II into sapindas and samanodakas and applying our rules separately to each subdivision; but samanodakas are not so frequent in practice as to necessitate this complication. The rules of intestate succession should be as few and simple as possible, hard and rare cases being left to be dealt with by will.

11. We suggest that our four rules are a sufficiently correct translation of the recognized principles of Mitakshara succession. And in fact, as we have already seen, rules 1 and 2 are merely generalisations of the Mitakshara principle that atmabandhus succeed before pitribandhus or matribandhus and rules 3 and 4 of the principle that pitribandhus succeed before matribandhus.

12. The existing law, particularly as to the succession of cognates, is complicated, indefinite, and incomplete. We must attempt to restore Vijnaneswara's simplicity but combine it with the greater precision now needed. We believe that without any departure from his principles the whole law of Mitakshara male succession (unmodified by Statute) can be exhaustively embodied in the following few rules, which merely reproduce what we have already said:—

"Rule 1.—When a Hindu male governed by the Mitakshara school dies intestate in respect of heritable property, it shall devolve, as respects his male heirs, in the following order on the following classes of relations, namely:—

I. The 'compact series' of heirs, that is to say,

(1) son, son of pre-deceased son, and son of pre-deceased son's predeceased son (succeeding simultaneously).

(4) Daughter's son.

(5) Father.

(6) Brother.

(7) Brother's son.

II. Agnates of the deceased (i.e., persons related to him wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I.

III. Cognates of the deceased (i.e., persons related to him, but not wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I (i,e., other than the daughter's son).

Rule 2.—(a) Each class excludes the next and within each class the earlier group excludes the later.

(b) In each group, persons related to the deceased by the half blood succeed immediately after persons related by the full blood.

Rule 3.—The order of the heirs in classes II and III shall be determined by the next four rules.

Rule 4.—Of two heirs, the one who is nearer in ascent succeeds first.

Rule 5.—If the two are equally near in ascent, the one nearer in descent succeeds first."

Rule 6.—If the two are equally near both in ascent and descent, the one who is in the father's line of ascent succeeds first.

Rule 7.—If the two are equally near in ascent and descent and the chain of ascent, if any, is the same in both cases, the one who is in the son's line of descent succeeds first."

These rules, as already explained, involve no change in the traditional Mitakshara law of male succession. They aim merely at re-stating the old principles in a more precise form.

13. We may now consider whether it is necessary to limit the number of heirs in classes II and III in any way. The rules we have proposed can be applied to every imaginable case however remote the competing heirs may be so that from this point of view no limit is necessary. Moreover, there have been differences of opinion amongst the High Courts as to where the line is to be drawn for "heritable bandhus". On the whole there seems no particular advantage in prescribing any limit in this behalf.

14. Statute Law has made certain changes in the traditional rules, e.g., by giving a place to the sister's son in class II; but the main change effected by legislation has hitherto been in respect of female heirs, a subject to which we next turn our attention. A fundamental principle which we think it is now time to adopt is that no woman shall be disqualified for succession merely by reason of her sex. Taking this as our starting point we have to consider how best to fit women into the above scheme. This will be dealt with in our next memorandum.

Second Memorandum.

MITAKSHARA SCHOOL.

Succession of female heirs to the property of a male.

1. We have seen that the entire Mitakshara law of succession as respects male heirs to the property of a male can be summed up in three classes of heirs and four rules in propinquity. We have now to consider the question of female heirs succeeding to the property of a male.

2. The fundamental principle is that no woman should be disqualified for succession by reason merely of her sex. No longer can we subscribe to Baudhayana's doctrine that "women being devoid of the senses are incompetent to inherit". Once this disqualification is removed we do not believe that there will be much difficulty in fitting them into the classes and rules already prescribed.

3. Class I, "the compact series of heirs", will need to be enlarged so as to include not only the women enumerated in Yajnyavalkya's well-known text, namely, the widow, the daughter, and the mother, but also those enumerated in the Mitakshara and the Mayukha, namely, the father's mother and the sister, as also those who have been provided for by special legislation, namely, the widows of pre-deceased sons and grandsons, the son's daughter and the daughter's daughter.

4. Class II (agnates of the deceased) and class III (cognates of the deceased) will need no change merely because of the admission of women. A woman who is related to the deceased wholly through males (excluding, of course, herself) will be considered an agnate, and other female relations will be considered cognates. There is, therefore, no difficulty in placing women in one class or the other.

5. The four rules of propinquity determining the place of each heir in class II or in class III can also be applied to women without any change.

6. There is, however, one special rule which we should like to make for women who are widows when succession opens. Such women should be entitled to take the place which their husbands would have occupied if they had been alive at the time. We propose this rule not only as the logical result of Brihaspati's dictum that a widow is the surviving half of her deceased husband but also because we consider that our laws of succession should be in aid of our ideals of marriage. Clearly, a widow who succeeds to property as the living half of her deceased husband has fewer temptations to depart from the high Hindu ideal of "fidelity until death". Of course, if she re-marries, she will forfeit her inheritance.

7. As a consequence of the "Deshmukh Act" (Act XVIII of 1937 as amended by Act XI of 1938) granting simultaneous and equal rights of succession to the widow, the widowed daughter-in-law, etc., along with the son, etc., we suggest that the unmarried daughter should also be included in the "simultaneous succession group". The married daughter may be placed outside and immediately after that group.

8. We can, therefore, perhaps put the whole law of Mitakshara succession to the property of males in the form of the following rules:—

"Rule 1.—When a Hindu male governed by the Mitakshara school dies intestate in respect of heritable property, it shall devolve in the following order on the following classes of relations, namely:—

I.—The "enumerated heirs", that is to say,

1. (a) Widow;
   (b) son;
   (c) son of pre-deceased son;
   (d) son of pre-deceased sons' pre-deceased son;
   (e) widows of (b), (c) and (d); and
   (f) unmarried daughter (all succeeding simultaneously and with equal rights).
2. Married daughter.
3. Daughter's son.
4. Mother.
5. Father.
6. Brother.
7. Brother's son.
8. Father's mother.
9. Sister.
10. Father's father.
11. Son's daughter.
12. Daughter's daughter.
13. Sister's son.

II.—Agnates of the deceased, (i.e., persons related to him wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I.

III.—Cognates of the deceased, (i.e., persons related to him, but not wholly through moles) other than those already enumerated under I.

Explanation.—A woman who is related to the deceased wholly through males (excluding herself) is an agnate and any other female relation a cognate for the purposes of these rules.

Rule 2.—(a) Each class excludes the next and within each class the earlier group excludes the later.

(b) In each group, persons related to the deceased by the half blood succeed immediately after persons related by the full blood.

Rule 3.—The order of the heirs in classes II and III shall be determined by the next four rules.

Rule 4.—Of two heirs, the one who is nearer in ascent succeeds first.

Rule 5.—If the two are equally near in ascent, the one nearer in decent succeeds first.

Rule 6.—If the two are equally near both in ascent, and descent, the one who is in the male line of ascent succeeds first.

Rule 7.—If the two are equally near in ascent and descent and the chain of ascent, if any, is the same in both cases, the one who is in the male line of descent succeeds first.

Rule 8.—A woman who is a widow when succession opens (except the widow of the deceased himself) takes the place which her husband would have occupied in the order of succession if he had been alive at the time, without prejudice to any other rights which she may have by birth".

Third Memorandum.

INTESTATE SUCCESSION.

Dayabhaga School.

1. As in the case of the Mitakshara school, we shall deal first with the succession of males to the property of males.

2. To save space we shall adopt the usual symbols; F for father, M for mother, S for son, and D for daughter. Thus, MFSS will stand for the mother's father's son's son (i.e., first cousin on the mother's side), of the deceased owner.

3. The Dayabhaga law of succession regarding certain heirs, of whom we may mention SDS and SSDS as typical, is in an unsatisfactory state. Golap Chandra Sarkar's view is that according to the Dayabhaga itself, properly interpreted, and supplemented by the Dayatattva, these heirs come as bandhus or cognates in the Mitakshara order, after all the agnates down to samanodakas have been exhausted (see pages 473 et seq. of Golap Chandra Sarkar's Hindu Law, 1940). He states that apart from giving FDS, FFDS, FFFDS, MF, MFS, MFSS, MFSSS and MFDS an earlier place, Jimutavahana intended to leave the order of succession such as it is according to the Mitakshara (page 477 loc cit.). It follows that heirs like SDS and SSDS were intended to retain their Mitakshara rank, which would be amongst the cognates.

4. Dr. Sarvadhikari, on the other hand, places SDS and SSDS very high in his table, that is to say, immediately after DS and before F. This is undoubtedly their place if the principle of "spiritual efficacy" is strictly followed, for each of them, like DS, gives a pinda to the deceased owner himself, while F does not. Similarly, he gives FSDS, FSSDS and the rest comparatively high places appropriate to their "spiritual capacity".

5. It appears, however, that according to the principles laid down in certain decisions of the Calcutta High Court, the place to be assigned to these heirs is neither so low as G. C. Sarkar would give them nor so high as in Dr. Sarvadhikari's table, but between FFFDS and MF (G. C. Sarkar's Hindu Law, 1940, pages 475, 476 and Mulla's Hindu Law, 1940, page 94).

6. For the present we propose to follow Golap Chandra Sarkar, partly because our own reading of the texts (omitting those passages of Srikrishna's Dayakrama Sangraha which were held to be interpolations in Gobinda Hareekar v. Woomesh Chandra Roy, W. R. Special No. 176) agrees with his, and partly because his view causes the least divergence between the Mitakshara and the Dayabhaga schools.

7. The Dayabhaga law of male succession to the property of males will then reduce, like the Mitakshara law, to three classes of heirs and four rules of propinquity. Of the three classes of heirs, the first class, which we may term the class of enumerated heirs, will differ from the corresponding Mitakshara class; but otherwise there will be no difference between the two schools.

8. We may enunciate the Dayabhaga rules thus:—

"Rule 1.—When a Hindu male governed by the Dayabhaga school dies intestate, his property shall devolve, as respects his male heirs, in the following order on the following classes of relations, namely:—

I.—The enumerated heirs, that is to say,—

(a) S, SS, SSS, DS;

(b) F, FS, FSS, FSSS, FDS;

(c) FF, FFS, FFSS, FFSSS, FFDS;

(d) FFF, FFFS, FFFSS, FFFSSS, FFFDS;

(e) MF, MFS, MFSS, MFSSS and MFDS.

SS, if his father has pre-deceased the intestate, and SSS, if both his father and his father's father have pre-deceased the intestate, succeed simultaneously with S; otherwise the heirs named above succeed in the order in which they have been enumerated.

[The heirs named above are those expressly enumerated either by Yajnyavalkya, Jimutavahana, Srikrishna Tarkalankar, or Raghunandana; hence the term enumerated heirs'. The doctrine of 'spiritual efficacy' is implicit in the order of the enumeration and need not be separately enunciated. It will be noticed that the enumerated heirs consist, first, of certain descendants of the deceased himself, then, the father and his descendants; then the father's father and his descendants; and so on. The descendants in question comprise the son, the son's son, the son's son's son, and the daughter's son; and similarly, the ascendants comprise the father, the father's father, the father's father's father, and the mother's father.]

II.—Agnates of the deceased other than those already enumerated under I.

[If necessary, these can be subdivided into sakulyas and samanodakas; but it is doubtful if such a subdivision is of sufficient practical importance. The laws of intestate succession should, as we have already said, be as simple as possible.

III.—Cognates of the deceased other than those already enumerated under I.

Rules 2 to 7.—As in the Mitakshara school (Memo. I)."

It will be noticed that except as to class I of rule 1, the classes and rules are the same as in the Mitakshara school. If women are included in the scheme of succession, we can perhaps put the whole law of Dayabhaga succession to the property of males in the form of the following rules:—

"Rule 1.—When a Hindu male governed by the Dayabhaga school dies intestate, his property shall devolve in the following order on the following classes of relations, namely:—

I.—The 'enumerated heirs', that is to say.—

(a) (1) widow, (2) son, (3) son of pre-deceased son, (4) son of pre-deceased son's pre-deceased son, (5) widow of (2), (3) and (4), (6) unmarried daughter (all succeeding simultaneously and with equal rights), (7) married daughter, (8) daughter's son.

(b) F, M, FS, FSS, FSSS, SD, DD, FD, FDS;

(c) FF, FM, FFS, FFSS, FFSSS, FFDS;

(d) FFF, FFM, FFFS, FFFSS, FFFSSS, FFFDS;

(e) MF, MFS, MFSS, MFSSS, MFDS.

[No. 5 in (a) above is the result of the 'Deshmukh Act'; No. (6) is added to the 'simultaneous succession group' in order to avoid any injustice to the unmarried daughter; SD, DD and FD in (b) are inserted immediately before FDS in the spirit of Act II of 1929. The other women in this class, namely, widow, daughter, mother, father's mother, and father's father's mother are in Jimutavahana's enumeration.]

Classes II and III of Rule 1, and the other Rules, as in the Mitakshara school (Memo. II)."

Comparing class I above with class I of the Mitakshara school (Memo. II), we find that up to FSS (brother's son) the two are almost identical, the only difference being that while F comes before M in the former, the order is reversed in the latter. The Mayukha and the Smriti Chandrika, like the Dayabhaga, place F first and this ranking is more in accordance with our general rule (Rule 8) that a widow takes the place of her husband. Possibly therefore there should be no great objection to placing F before M (and similarly FF before FM) in the Mitakshara jurisdictions as elsewhere. If as regards the other "enumerated heirs" also the two principal schools could agree to have the same heirs in the same order, we should be able to have a common law of intestate succession for the whole of India. We suggest that class I of Rule 1 as set out by us for the Dayabhaga school should be adopted with one small change for the whole of India (including Bengal) in the interests of uniformity. The change suggested is the transfer of SD and DD from I (b) to the end of I (a).

Proposed Rules for all India.

9. We would therefore propose the following rules for the whole of India:—

"Rule 1.—When a Hindu dies intestate in respect of heritable property, it shall devolve in the following order on the following classes of relations, namely,—

I.—The 'enumerated heirs,' that is to say,—

(a) The intestate's widow and descendants:

(1) widow;
(2) son;
(3) son of pre-deceased son;
(4) son of pre-deceased son of pre-deceased son;

} (all succeeding simultaneously and with equal rights).

(5) unmarried daughter;
(6) married daughter;
(7) daughter's son;
(8) son's daugter; and
(9) daughter's daughter.

(b) The intestate's father and his descendants:—

(1) F (2) FS (3) FSS (4) FSSS (5) FD (6) FDS.

(c) The intestate's father's father and his descendants :—

(1) FF (2) FFS (3) FFSS (4) FFSSS (5) FFDS.

(d) The intestate's father's father's father and his descendants :—

(1) FFF (2) FFFS (3) FFFSS (4) FFFSSS (5) FFFDS.

(e) The intestate's mother's father and his descendants :—

(1) MF (2) MFS (3) MFSS (4) MFSS (5) MFDS.

[SD and DD are the intestate's own descendants and therefore belong logically to I (a).

It is unnecessary to mention the son's widow, or the grandson's widow or the great-grandson's widow or M or FM or FFM separately, because by virtue of Rule 8, if widows when succession opens they take the place of their respective husbands.

It will be noticed that if we omit the female heirs in this class, the enumeration is identical, in order and content, with Jimutavahana's as interpreted by G. C. Sarkar. The female heirs are either those enumerated by Jimutavahana himself or those mentioned in Act II of 1929.]

II.—Agnates of the deceased (i.e., persons related to him wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I.

III.—Cognates of the deceased (i.e., persons related to him, but not wholly through males) other than those already enumerated under I.

Explanation.—A woman who is related to the deceased wholly through males (excluding herself) is an agnate and any other female relation a cognate for the purposes of these Rules.

Rule 2.—(a) Each class excludes the next and within each class the earlier group excludes the later.

(b) In each group, persons related to the deceased by the half blood succeed immediately after persons related by the full blood.

Rule 3.—The order of the heirs in classes II and III shall be determined by the next four rules.

Rule 4.—Of two heirs, the one who is nearer in ascent succeeds first.

Rule 5.—If the two are equally near in ascent, the one nearer in descent succeeds first.

Rule 6.—If the two are equally near both in ascent and descent, the one who is in the male line of ascent succeeds first.

Rule 7.—If the two are equally near in ascent and descent and the chain of ascent, if any, is the same in both cases, the one who is in the male line of descent succeeds first.

Rule 8.—A woman who is a widow when succeession opens (except the widow of the deceased himself) takes the place which her husband would have occupied in the order of succession if he had been alive at the time, without prejudice to any other rights which she may have."

10. The rules are mainly those of the Mitakshara, while the enumeration in class I is mainly that of the Dayabhaga. The scheme as a whole is therefore a compromise between the two schools. We cannot emphasize too strongly that the proposed rules are the rules of intestate succession, liable to be over-ridden by a will. Since any owner of property can put them out of action by will if he does not like them, there can be no great objection to having a uniform set of rules for the whole country.

Fourth Memorandum.

STRIDHANA OR WOMAN'S PROPERTY.

Mitakshara School.

Definition of Stridhana.

Though there are said to be about eighty different Smritis treating of Stridhana, only eight are referred to by the Commentators; but even so "there is hardly any text of importance on the subject which has not received different constructions" (Banerjee's Hindu Law of Marriage and Stridhana, 1923, p. 326). The result is that the subject of Stridhana has become most difficult.

2. Some of the difficulties of the subject will, we venture to think, disappear, if we distinguish carefully between property on the one hand and dominion over, or devolution of, property on the other. To take a familiar example, a male owner governed by the Mitakshara may possess (a) separate property and (b) an undivided coparcenary interest in anscestral property. Both (a) and (b) can properly be described as his "property", but the extent of his dominion over (a) is greater than over (b): e.g., he can make a gift or devise of (a) but not of (b). Again unless he makes a will in respect of (a), the devolution of the two descriptions of property after his death may be different: e.g., if his only survivors are a daughter and an undivided brother (a) will go to his daughter; and (b) will go to his brother. But although there are these distinctions between (a) and (b) it seems unnecessary and is not usual, merely for the purpose of marking those distinctions, to confine the term "property" only to (a); (b) as well as (a) is his "property". Similarly, a man's movable property may in certain circumstances devolve differently from his immovable property; but again both are properly described as his "property".

3. So too, merely because a woman may have different degrees of dominion over different portions of her "property" or because their devolution after her death may be different, it seems unnecessary to say that any particular portion is her "property" and that any other portion is not. From this point of view it seems to us that Vijnaneswara's interpretation of the term Stridhana is the most convenient: according to him the term "conforms in its import with its etymology and is not technical". We shall therefore adopt the following definition for the Mitakshara jurisdictions: Definition:—"Stridhana" means any property belonging to a woman.

Dominion over Stridhana.

4. In our previous memoranda we have proceeded on the footing that no woman shall be disqualified for succession merely by reason of her sex. Equally fundamental seems the proposition that no limitation should be imported into the nature of an estate merely because it is held by a woman. If, for example, she has taken under a gift or will specifically giving her a limited estate, such as an estate for life, then, of course, she will only have a limited estate just as a man would in similar circumtances; but the mere circumstance that she is a woman should create no presumption that hers is an inferior or limited estate. This is in strict accordance with Vijnaneswara's ideas, for the Mitakshara, while it includes all property belonging to a woman in the term Stridhana, nowhere imposes any limitation on her dominion over it. There are restrictions and prohibitions upon her husband and any other kinsman or heir using her property, but none upon the woman herself. And as for the doctrine of the perpetual tutelage of the Hindu woman, from which a property limitation is often sought to be inferred, Vijnaneswara himself never refers to the doctrine in this connection, and his reference to it in another connection is significant:

"The text of Narada, which declares the dependence of women, is not incompatible with their acceptance of property: even admitting their dependence". (Mit. Ch. II, Sec. I, 25.) In other words, in Vijnaneswara's view, this dependence, even if admitted, has little bearing on property rights—a conclusion which is borne out by the fact that according to all schools of Hindu law, a woman has absolute power of disposal over certain kinds of Stridhana. The law, as now administered, has become complicated and inconsistent. In Bombay, a daughter inherits from her father with absolute rights, but not a widow from her husband; in Mithila, a widow inherits movables absolutely, but not immovable property; everywhere, an unmarried woman has full dominion over the whole of her Stridhana and a married over her Saudayika stridhana. These complications are difficult to understand on the theory of perpetual tutelage. They have arisen, we think, because we have departed from Vijnaneswara, and the solution is once more to be found in a return to his ideas.

5. The latest discussion of this subject is by Sir M. Venkatasubba Rao, Retired Judge, Madras High Court, in the Golden Jubilee Number of the Madras Law Journal. After discussing the texts, he observes: "The doctrine of limited estate, is thus a pure creation by judicial decisions unsupported by ancient Shastra.

"In the realm of Hindu Law, this rule more than any other has produced grave social injustice. Kinsmen of all sorts swoop down, goodness knows from where, to clutch at the property, and this not only on the death of the woman, as reversioners are permitted by law to harass her even during her lifetime. There is no class of suits which shock a judge's sense of justice more than suits by reversioners. To mitigate the evil, rules of evidence have been relaxed to protect transfers by Hindu women and the doctrine of necessity has been greatly stretched. Nevertheless how many titles (some even of sixty or seventy years' standing) have had to be upset and how many homes have been wrecked! To what unending litigation, chicanery and subterfuge does this rule not lead!" (pp. 42,43, loc cit.).

6. We therefore suggest the following rule for all the Mitakshara sub-schools:—

"There shall be no presumption that an owner's rights over property whether acquired by inheritance, gift, devise or in any other way whatsoever are limited merely because the owner is a woman".

7. It is to be noticed that the rule does not go beyond negativing a presumption from the mere sex of the owner. If, for instance, there are limitations in the owner's title-deed, the rule has no application.

Devolution of Stridhana.

8. The following rules are proposed for the Mitakshara jurisdictions:—

"1. If a Hindu woman dies intestate in respect of Stridhana, it shall devolve according to the following rules.

2. That part, if any, of the Stridhana which was inherited by her from a male owner shall devolve upon his heirs in the order in which they would have succeeded to his property.

3. Save as aforesaid, Stridhana shall devolve upon the following relations of the intestate in the following order:—

(a) unmarried daughter;

(b) married daughter;

(c) daughter's daughter;

(d) daughter's son;

(e) son;

(f) son's son;

(g) husband;

(h) husband's heirs in the order in which they would have succeeded to his property;

(i) mother;

(j) father;

(k) father's heirs in the order in which they would have succeeded to his property;

(l) mother's heirs in the order in which they would have succeeded to her Stridhana;

(m) daughter's husband".

9. It is to be noticed that these rules, like the corresponding rules for the property of males, are meant to apply only in cases of intestacy, so that any woman who has property to leave and wishes to depart from the rules can do so by making a will. In these circumstances, there is little chance of hardship and great gain in simplicity in having uniform rules. Hence our proposal that these rules should be adopted for all the Mitakshara jurisdictions.

10. As regards rule 2, we would point out that according to Vijnaneswara property inherited by a woman is Stridhana and follows the same line of devolution as any other description of Stridhana. However, as case-law has departed from Vijnaneswara in this respect, we have proposed this rule as a compromise.

11. Rule 3 follows mainly Vijnaneswara's enumeration. The only changes worth mentioning are (i) that we do not propose a separate line of devolution for the Stridhana of an unmarried woman nor for that of a woman married in an "unapproved" form nor for the variously-defined kinds of property known as Sulka and (ii) that we have added the son-in-law as an heir [vide (m) of the list] in accordance with Brihaspati's text (Brihaspati, XXV, 88 and 89), the other heirs mentioned in that text being already included in (h) or (k).

Dayabhaga School.

12. Hitherto we have dealt with Stridhana in the Mitakshara schools or sub-schools; we have now to deal with the subject in the Dayabhaga school. Jimutavahana has a different definition of Stridhana from Vijnaneswara's and what is more Jimutavahana unlike Vijnaneswara definitely limits a widow's rights in the property inherited by her from her husband. The line of devolution also is different. If, on these grounds, it is considered absolutely necessary to have entirely different sets of rules for the two schools, we anticipate no great difficulty in drafting separate rules for the Dayabhaga school. But it would be an enormous simplification if the rules we have proposed for the Mitakshara jurisdictions on this subject could be adopted for the whole of India. In this connection we would invite attention to the observations in G. C. Sarkar's Hindu Law, 1940, pages 562 and 564.

[To be introduced in the Legislative Assembly.]

A

to codify the Hindu Law relating to marriage.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and codify, in successive stages, the whole of the Hindu Law now in force in British India;

AND WHEREAS it is now expedient in pursuance of that design to enact a law of marriage for Hindus;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Hindu Code, Part II (Marriage).

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of January, 1946.

Interpretation.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "caste" means one of the four primary varnas or castes into which Hindus are divided and does not include any sub-caste;

(b) "gotra" and "pravara" have the same meanings as in the Hindu Law;

(c) (i) "sapinda relationship" with reference to any person extends as far as the fifth generation (inclusive) in the line of ascent through the mother and the seventh (inclusive) in the line of ascent through the father, the line being traced upwards in each case from the person concerned, who is to be counted as the first generation;

(ii) two persons are said to be "sapindas" of each other if one is an ancestor of the other within the limits of sapinda relationship, or if they have a common ancestor who is within the limits of sapinda relationship with reference to each of them;

Illustrations.

(i) A is the son's daughter's son's daughter of C, who is the mother's father's mother's father of B. Here C, the common ancestor, is the fifth generation from A in the father's line and the fifth generation from B in the mother's line. A and B are sapindas of each other.

(ii) A is the son's daughter's son's daughter's daughter of C, who is the father's mother's father's mother's father of B. Here C, the common ancestor, is the sixth generation from A in the mother's line and the sixth from B in the father's line. C being outside the limits of sapinda relationship with reference to A, A and B are not sapindas of each other.

(d) two persons are said to be within "the degrees of relationship prohibited by this Act," if they are related by blood to each other lineally, or as brother and sister, or as uncle and niece, or as aunt and nephew.

Explanation.—For the purposes of clauses (c) and (d) relationship includes—

(i) relationship of the half blood, that is, descent from a common ancestor by different wives, as well as of the full blood, that is, descent from a common ancestor by the same wife;

(ii) illegitimate blood relationship as well as legitimate;

(iii) relationship in the family of adoption as well as in the family of birth; and all terms of relationship shall be construed accordingly.

Two forms of Hindu Marriage.

3. There shall be two forms of the Hindu marriage, namely:—

(a) a sacramental marriage;
(b) a civil marriage.

Sacramental marriages.

Requisites of a sacramental marriage.

4. A sacramental marriage may be solemnized between any two Hindus upon the following conditions, namely:—

(a) neither party must have a husband or wife living at the time of marriage;
(b) both the parties must belong to the same caste;
(c) if the parties are members of a caste having gotras and pravaras, they must not belong to the same gotra, or have a common pravara;
(d) the parties must not be sapindas of each other;
(e) if the bride has not completed her sixteenth year, her guardian in marriage must consent to the marriage.

Ceremonies essential for sacramental marriage.

5. Two ceremonies are essential to the validity of a sacramental marriage, namely:—

(a) invocation before the sacred fire;
(b) saptapadi, that is, the taking of seven steps by the bridegroom and the bride jointly before the sacred fire.

The marriage becomes complete and binding when the seventh step is taken, and consummation is not necessary to complete a marriage or make it binding on the parties.

Marriages according to custom deemed to be valid sacramental marriages

6. Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 4 and 5, a marriage shall be deemed to be a valid sacramental marriage if it is solemnized in accordance with the customs or usages of any locality or community to which both the parties belong, or the rules of any school of personal law which they both follow, whether such community be a caste, sub-caste, sect, tribe, or other group:

Provided that the condition specified in clause (a) of section 4 is fulfilled and that the parties are not within the degrees of relationship prohibited by this Act.

Sacramental marriages not to be deemed to be invalid in certain cases.

7. No sacramental marriage solemnized after the commencement of this Act shall, after it has been completed, be deemed to be, or ever to have been, invalid merely by reason of one or more of the following causes, namely:—

(a) that the parties to the marriage do not, or did not, belong to the same caste;
(b) that the parties belonged to the same gotra or had a common pravara; or
(c) unless there was force or fraud, that the consent of the bride's guardian in marriage to the marriage was not obtained.

Civil Marriages.

Requisites of a civil marriage.

8. A civil marriage may be contracted under this Act by any person professing the Hindu religion with any other person professing the Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh, or Jaina religion upon the following conditions, namely:—

(1) neither party must, at the time of the marriage, have a husband or wife living;

(2) the man must have completed his eighteenth year, and the woman her fourteenth year, according to the Gregorian calendar;

(3) each party must, if he or she has not completed his or her twenty-first year, have obtained the consent of his or her guardian in marriage to the marriage;

(4) the parties must not be within the degrees of relationship prohibited by this Act.

Marriage Registrars.

9. (1) The Provincial Government may appoint one or more Registrars under this Act for any portion of the Province.

(2) The officer so appointed shall be called "Registrar of Hindu Civil Marriages" and is hereinafter referred to as "the Registrar".

(3) The portion of territory for which any such officer is appointed is hereinafter referred to as his district.

Notice of marriage to Registrar.

10. (1) When a civil marriage is intended to be contracted under this Act, one of the parties must give notice in writing to the Registrar before whom it is to be contracted.

(2) The Registrar to whom such notice is given must be the Registrar of a district within which one at least of the parties to the marriage has resided for fourteen days before such notice is given.

(3) Such notice may be in the form given in the First Schedule.

Marriages Notice Book.

11. The Registrar shall file all notices given under sub-section (1) of section 10 and keep them with the records of his office, and shall also forthwith enter a true copy of every such notice in a book furnished to him for that purpose by the Provincial Government, to be called the "Hindu Civil Marriages Notice Book", and such book shall be open at all reasonable times, without fee, to all persons desirous of inspecting the same.

Objection to marriage.

12. (1) Fourteen days after notice of an intended marriage has been given under section 10, such marriage may be contracted, unless it has been previously objected to in the manner hereinafter provided in this section.

(2) Any person may, before the expiration of fourteen days from the giving of the notice of an intended marriage, object to such marriage on the ground that it would contravene some one or more of the conditions prescribed in clauses (1), (2), (3) and (4) of section 8.

(3) The nature of the objection made shall be recorded in writing by the Registrar in the Hindu Civil Marriages Notice Book and shall, if necessary, be read over and explained to the person making the objection, and shall be signed by him or on his behalf.

Procedure of Registrar on receipt of objection.

13. (1) If an objection is made under section 12 to an intended marriage the Registrar shall not allow the marriage to be contracted until the lapse of fourteen days from the receipt of such objection, if there be a Court of competent jurisdiction open at the time, or, if there be no such Court open at the time, until the lapse of fourteen days from the opening of such Court.

Objector may file suit.

(2) The person objecting to the intended marriage may file a suit in any Civil Court having local jurisdiction (other than a Court of Small Causes) for a declaratory decree, declaring that such marriage would contravene some one or more of the conditions prescribed in clauses (1), (2), (3) and (4) of section 8, and the officer before whom such suit is filed shall thereupon give the person presenting it a certificate to the effect that such suit has been filed.

Certificate of filing of suit to be lodged with Registrar.

(3) If the certificate referred to in sub-section (2) is lodged with the Registrar within fourteen days from the receipt by him of the objection, if there is a Court of competent jurisdiction open at the time, or, if there is no such Court open at the time, within fourteen days of the opening of such Court, the marriage shall not be contracted till the decision of such Court has been given and the period allowed by law for appeals from such decision has elapsed; or, if there is an appeal from such decision, till the decision of the Appellate Court has been given.

(4) If such certificate is not lodged in the manner and within the period laid down in sub-section (3) or if the decision of the Court is that such marriage would not contravene any of the conditions prescribed in clauses (1), (2), (3) and (4) of section 8, such marriage may be contracted.

(5) If the decision of the Court is that the marriage in question would contravene any of the conditions prescribed in clauses (1), (2), (3) and (4) of section 8, the marriage shall not be contracted.

Court may fine when objection not reasonable.

14. Any Court in which any such suit as is referred to in sub-section (2) of section 13 is filed, may, if it appears to it that the objection was not reasonable and bona fide, inflict a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees on the person objecting, and award it, or any part of it, to the parties to the intended marriage.

Declaration by parties and witnesses.

15. Before the marriage is contracted the parties and three witnesses shall, in the presence of the Registrar, sign a declaration in the form contained in the Second Schedule. If either party has not completed his or her twenty-first year, the declaration shall also be signed by his or her guardian, except in the case of a widow, and, in every case, it shall be countersigned by the Registrar.

Marriage how to be contracted.

16. The marriage shall be contracted in the presence of the Registrar and of the three witnesses who signed the declaration. The contracting may be done in any form, provided that each party says to the other, in the presence and hearing of the Registrar and witnesses, "I, (A), take thee, (B), to be my lawful wife (or husband)".

Place where marriage may be contracted.

17. The marriage may be contracted either at the office of the Registrar or at such other place, within reasonable distance of the office of the Registrar, as the parties desire:

Provided that the Provincial Government may prescribe the conditions under which marriages may be contracted at places other than the Registrar's office, and the additional fees to be paid thereupon.

Certificate of marriage.

18. (1) When the marriage has been contracted, the Registrar shall enter a certificate thereof in a book to be kept by him for that purpose and to be called the "Hindu Civil Marriages Certificate Book" in the form given in the Third Schedule, and such certificate shall be signed by the parties to the marriage and the three witnesses.

(2) The Hindu Civil Marriages Certificate Book shall at all reasonable times be open for inspection, and shall be admissible as evidence of the truth of the statements therein contained. Certified extracts therefrom shall on application be given by the Registrar on the payment to him by the applicant of such fees as may be prescribed by the Provincial Government.

Transmission of certified copies of entries in marriage certificate book to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages.

19. The Registrar shall send to the Registrar General of Births, Deaths and Marriages for the territories within which his district is situate, at such intervals as may be prescribed by the Provincial Government, a true copy certified by him, in such form as the Provincial Government may prescribe, of all entries made by him in the Hindu Civil Marriages Certificate Book since the last of such intervals.

Fees.

20. The Provincial Government shall prescribe the fees to be paid to the Registrar for the duties to be discharged by him under this Act.

The Registrar may, if he thinks fit, demand payment of any such fee before performing any duty in respect of which it is paybale.

Indian Divorce Act to apply.

21. The Indian Divorce Act shall apply to all civil marriages contracted under this Act, and any such marriage may be declared null or dissolved in the manner therein provided, and for the causes therein mentioned, or on the ground that it contravenes some one or more of the conditions prescribed in clauses (1), (2), (3) and (4) of section 8 of this Act. IV of 1869.

Penalty for signing declarations or certificates containing false statements.

22. Every person making, signing or attesting any declaration or certificate required under this Act, containing a statement which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed guilty of the offence described in section 199 of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860.

General Provisions.

Guardianship in marriage.

23. (1) The persons entitled to be guardians in marriage—

(a) of a Hindu girl who has not completed her sixteenth year, for the purposes of her sacramental marriage,

(b) of a Hindu (other than a widow) who has not completed his or her twenty-first year, for the purposes of his or her civil marriage under this Act are the following, in the order given, namely:—

(1) the father;
(2) the mother;
(3) the paternal grandfather;
(4) the brother;
(5) any other agnatic male relation;
(6) the maternal grandfather;
(7) the maternal uncle.

(2) Where any person entitled to be the guardian in marriage under sub-section (1) refuses, or is, by reason of absence, desertion, disability or other cause, unable or unfit, to act as such, the person next in order shall be entitled to be the guardian.

(3) Where there are two or more persons equally entitled to guardianship under the foregoing provisions, it shall be in the discretion of the Court having jurisdiction under the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, to decide which of them shall be regarded as the guardian. VIII of 1890.

(4) Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction of a Court to prohibit by injunction an intended marriage arranged by the guardian, if in the interests of the minor the Court thinks fit to do so.

Punishment of bigamy.

24. Any marriage between two persons, one professing the Hindu religion and the other the Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh, or Jaina religion, solemnized or contracted after the commencement of this Act is void, if at the date of such marriage either party had a husband or wife living; and the provisions of sections 494 and 495 of the Indian Penal Code shall apply accordingly. XLV of 1860.

Power to make rules.

FOURTH SCHEDULE.

(See section 26.)

No. and Year.	Title.	Amendment.
Act III of 1872 ..	The Special Marriage Act, 1872.	The word "Hindu", where it occurs for the second time in section 2, and the whole of sections 22 to 26, both inclusive, shall be omitted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In consequence of certain difficulties of interpretation arising out of the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act, 1937, and the Act of 1938 amending that Act, the Central Government appointed, in January 1941, a Committee (sometimes referred to as the Hindu Law Committee) to examine these Acts and certain Bills introduced or proposed for introduction in the Indian Legislature to amend them. The Committee made a detailed examination of the subject after eliciting public opinion by issuing a questionnaire. In June 1941 they submitted a report unanimously recommending that the Hindu Law should be codified in successive stages, beginning with the law of succession, to be followed by the law of marriage. The first Bill on the Hindu Law of intestate succession has already been prepared. The present Bill containing the proposals of the Committee on the law of marriage completes the second stage in the proposed codification.

The Explanatory Note which follows was drawn up by the Committee and explains the main principles of the Bill and the provisions of the various clauses.

S. SULTAN AHMAD.

NEW DELHI,

The 27th May 1942.

EXPLANATORY NOTE.

This Bill contains only the first chapter of a comprehensive law of marriage, dealing as it does mainly with the subject of the celebration of marriage. The topics of the rights and duties arising out of marriage, of nullity, separate residence and maintenance, and divorce, and so forth will be dealt with in subsequent chapters which cannot be properly drafted until we know whether the provisions of the first chapter are acceptable. Thus, to mention only one instance, if monogamy (which this Bill proposes) commends itself to public opinion, as we hope it will, no provision will be necessary for separate residence and maintenance for a superseded wife in the event of her husband marrying a second time. But, otherwise, such a provision will be necessary. We should, therefore, like the provisions of the chapter which we have drafted to be circulated for public opinion before we undertake the drafting of the other chapters.

The broad plan of the Bill is to distinguish two forms of the Hindu marriage: the sacramental marriage and the civil marriage. These already exist, although not perhaps under these names. Briefly, the sacramental marriage is the marriage solemnized according to Hindu rites and the civil marriage is the marriage contracted before a Registrar in the manner laid down in the Special Marriage Act, 1872.

As regards the sacramental marriage, the Bill makes a change in the traditional law in one very important respect, namely, that it proposes to abolish polygamy. But although this is a change from the law as administered at present, it is in truth a restoration of the ancient law at its best. The well-known text of Manu (IX, 107) enjoins mutual fidelity until death as the highest duty of husband and wife; and indeed, in practice, the vast majority of Hindu marriages are monogamous. The eminent Madras lawyer responsible for the latest edition of Mayne's Hindu Law had occasion to write on this subject a few months before his death. While deprecating any violent break with the past, he observed: "The time has certainly come for the Hindu society to discard polygamy as a rule of Hindu Law. According to early Hindu Law monogamy was the approved rule and polygamy was an exceptional provision. It was only when the wife was barren, diseased or vicious or when she consented, that she could be superseded and a second marriage could be validly contracted. The right to take more than one wife in former days required legal justification; but the present rule of Hindu Law that a husband is not restricted as to the number of his wives and may marry again without the wife's consent or any justification, is far worse. It is no longer in accordance with modern enlightened opinion as to the status of women or the standard of justice that should govern marital relations, that we should have in this matter one law for men and another for women. In these days when equality of women must be recognised, at least in this connection, it would be folly to postpone this reform. Today, women, especially educated women, are deeply discontented with the present law and I have no doubt that many educated men also share their views in this matter. Marriages contracted between Hindus under the Special Marriage Act are monogamous and surprisingly enough the marriages of those who are governed by the Marumakathayam Law of Malabar have become monogamous by a recent statute, while the general Hindu society still clings to polygamy. The reform is to my mind one of the most urgent needs and does not require elaborate justification." (The Madras Law Journal, Golden Jubilee Number, 1941, pp. 13, 14).

In answer to the questionnaire which we issued last year, the majority of our correspondents declared themselves in favour of the abolition of polygamy.

We ourselves strongly feel that no law of marriage can be looked upon as satisfactory unless it does justice to the mothers of the race.

We have, therefore, made monogamy obligatory in the Bill even as regards sacramental marriages.

As regards the civil marriage, we have retained most of the provisions of the Special Marriage Act, but have attempted to remove one of its most glaring anomalies. That Act, as amended in 1923, provides, inter alia, (a) for the marriage of persons neither of whom professes the Hindu religion, and (b) for the marriage of persons both of whom profess the Hindu religion. The Courts have held that when Brahmos marry under provision (a) with a declaration disclaiming the Hindu religion, they are none the less governed in matters of succession by the Hindu Law, the declaration being regarded as merely for the purposes of marriage; but when Hindus marry under provision (b) of the Act with a declaration professing the Hindu religion, they are, by virtue of section 24, governed in matters of succession not by the Hindu Law but by the Indian Succession Act. The Bill seeks to remove this anomaly by not reproducing the provisions of the aforesaid section 24.

We have anxiously considered the question of inter-caste and sagotra marriages. Even from the point of view of the orthodox who believe in caste and gotra restrictions, there is a problem to be solved. The position of the girl who has, by the mistake or fault of her father or other guardian, been married according to Hindu rites to a husband of the same gotra or of a different caste imperatively calls for some remedy. We cannot do better in this connection than quote Sir Gurudas Banerjee: "The position of the woman whose marriage is void ab initio seems to be singularly unfortunate under the Hindu Law. The causes which render a marriage void ab initio are, first, difference of caste in the contracting parties; and second, identity of gotra or relationship within the prohibited degrees. In the former case according to some authorities if the error is discovered before garbhadhana the girl is to perform expiation and may be married again; but after garbhadhana, she is no longer eligible for re-marriage and if of a lower caste she is liable to be repudiated by her husband, though she is entitled to be maintained and her issue would be considered illegitimate. In the latter case, on the error being discovered, the husband is directed to perform penance and repudiate the wife; but he is required to support her. Her re-marriage, however, is nowhere allowed, even though the repudiation takes place before consummation. The doctrine of the Hindu Law is that the girl is blemished by the mere ceremony of marriage, and if married again, the reproach of being a twice-married woman (punarbhu) would attach to her, even if she be a virgo intacta. This is hardly just. Even the virgin widow has one consolation for her hard lot, that it is due to a cause which no human foresight could prevent. But the condition of the repudiated virgin wife, who is condemned to a life of virtual widowhood for the error of a reckless guardian, is truly pitiable." (Sir Gurudas Banerjee's Hindu Law of Marriage and Stridhana, 4th edition, p. 222).

The solution that we have proposed in the Bill is to extend the factum valet rule to such marriages. That is to say, their validity is not to be called in question after they have been completed. This rule is constantly applied by the Courts to cure various infractions of the strict Hindu Law. We shall quote a few instances from Sir Gurudas Banerjee's Lectures:

(1) A text of the Matsya Sukta, cited in the Udvahatattwa, says, "The marriage with a girl of equal pravaras or with a daughter of a pupil, or of the guru who instructs in the Vedas is prohibited." All three prohibitions are in the same terms, but as regards the last two, Banerjee thinks it very doubtful whether a Court would consider them as anything more than moral injunctions. In other words, Courts would apply the doctrine of factum valet to validate a marriage with the daughter of a pupil or a preceptor, once it has actually taken place.

(2) Again, in the very verse in which Yajnyavalkya enjoins marriage with a girl of a different gotra and pravara, he also lays down, in the same terms, that she should be younger than the husband and shorter in stature, and should have a brother living. But it can hardly be expected that the violation of these other injunctions would nullify a marriage already celebrated.

(3) A man is likewise prohibited to marry a girl who bears the same name as his mother. This rule is so imperative that if one inadvertently marries in violation of it, he is required to forsake the wife entirely and to perform penance. But it is doubtful whether, after marriage has taken place, a Court would regard this rule as imperative.

Thus in all these cases, Courts would apply the doctrine of factum valet to cure the infraction, once the prohibited marriage has actually been celebrated. We propose to extend the doctrine to marriages which (it may be by the inadvertence or recklessness of the guardians concerned) have been celebrated between parties of different castes or of the same gotra. Such marriages, in the sacramental form, are not likely to be many, but if they do take place, the wife would be in an impossible position unless they are validated. Merely to allow her to marry again would hardly be an adequate remedy, for no one is likely to want to marry her in the circumstances. We have accordingly provided that the validity of such marriages is not to be questioned after they have been completed although in proper cases they may be prohibited by injunction before they are performed.

These are the main principles of the Bill. We shall now proceed to notice in detail the more important clauses.

Clause 2.—(a) The definition of "caste" must be read with clause 4 (b) which lays down that for a sacramental marriage both the parties must belong to the same caste. It is now settled law that a marriage between persons belonging to different subdivisions of the same primary caste is not invalid. Hence the definition of "caste" as not including any sub-caste.

(b) We have not attempted to translate the words "gotra" and "pravara": indeed, as regards pravara, G. C. Sarkar in his well-known book remarks that "the word cannot be logically defined, as it will violate the fundamental rules of definition." (G. C. Sarkar's Hindu Law, 8th edition, 1940, p. 69). Gotras are exogamous groups named after certain rishis who are reputed to have founded them. Each gotra is connected not only with the name of its founder-rishi, but also with the names of certain associate-rishis who are called the pravaras of the gotra. (Pravarastu gotrapravartakasya muner ryâvartako muniganah) It is thus possible for two different gotras to have a common pravara or associate-rishi. It will be noticed from clause 4 (c) that the parties to a sacramental marriage must not belong to the same gotra; nor, even though they belong to different gotras, must they have a common pravara.

(c) This definition of "sapinda relationship" follows the texts of Yajnyavalkya, Vishnu, Narada and Vasishta. The relationship is necessarily mutual: A cannot be a sapinda of B without B being a sapinda of A. The mode of computing degrees is the Hindu mode according to which the propositus is the first generation, his mother or father the second, and so on upwards. It is not quite clear from the texts or the commentaries whether the computation, after the mother or the father, is to be restricted to male ancestors only or whether it extends to female ancestors as well. G. C. Sarkar appears to think that there is no reason to restrict it only to male ancestors (loc. cit., pp. 78, 106). The illustrations under the definition follow this view.

(d) This definition has been found necessary because there is the greatest diversity amongst Hindus in different parts of India as to what are the prohibited degrees of relationship for marriage. The usual rule is that the parties must not be sapindas of each other. Not only, however, has the sapinda relationship been interpreted in different ways by different authors, but the rule itself appears to be subject to modification by custom. But obviously some kind of limit has to be prescribed to prevent incestuous marriages taking place under the guise of custom. We have not thought it necessary to go so far as to prohibit marriages between first cousins. There is a Vedic text pointing to the prevalence of such marriages; there are also classical examples of such marriages and they are not infrequent even to-day in the south of India and in Bihar. (See G. C. Sarkar's Hindu Law, 8th edition, 1940, pp. 104, 105.) In these circumstances, we have drawn the line as in this definition; it happens to coincide with the line drawn in most systems of law in other parts of the world.

Clause 4.—Sub-clause (a) introduces monogamy.

Sub-clause (d) requires that the parties must not be sapindas of each other [as defined in clause 2 (c)]; but it will be noticed from clause 6 that a relaxation of this condition is permitted where there is a custom of usage modifying the rule. In practice, in most parts of India, sapinda relationship for purposes of marriage is limited to three generations on the mother's side and five on the father's side and this is permissible under the Bill.

Sub-clause (e) should be read with clause 24 which lays down the order of guardianship for marriage. Under the Sarda Act, the bridegroom cannot be less than eighteen years of age.

Clause 5.—Describes the two ceremonies which are generally regarded as essential to a sacramental marriage. Here again, it will be seen that clause 6 permits a relaxation of the general rule in face of a local custom or special usage.

Clause 6.—The last part of the proviso to this clause is intended to prevent marriages abhorrent to ordinary sentiment, such as between uncle and niece.

Clause 7.—Is meant to validate, for reasons already explained, certain marriages after completion. So far as marriages without the requisite consent are concerned, Courts already apply the doctrine of factum valet.

Clauses 8 to 22.—Reproduce substantially the existing provisions of the Special Marriage Act. We have already referred to one of the anomalies in this Act; there also appears to be an omission in section 16 as compared with section 15 of the Act. It will be noticed from the last part of section 15 that if a person is already married at the time of his contracting a civil marriage under the Act, the civil marriage is void. But if after the civil marriage, he contracts a second marriage, the second marriage is apparently not void, although he may be prosecuted for bigamy. The words "the marriage so solemnized is void" which occur at the end of section 15 do not find place in section 16. We have now combined these two sections into clause 24 of the Bill.

Clause 23.—The order of guardianship for purposes of marriage is, in the Mitakshara jurisdictions, (1) the father, (2) the father's father, (3) the brother, (4) the sakulya, and (5) the mother. In the Dayabhaga jurisdictions the order is the same up to No. 4 inclusive, but thereafter it is, (5) the mother's father, (6) the mother's brother, and (7) the mother. The trend of recent judicial decisions has, however, been to give the mother a position next only to that of the father for the purpose of selecting a proper husband for her daughter, the smriti texts being distinguished as relating merely to the act of giving away the bride after the selection. Hence the order proposed in the Bill. The other provisions of this clause, are not meant to make any change in the existing law, but merely to state it with precision.

Clause 26.—This clause repeals the amendments made in 1923 in the Special Marriage Act, as necessary provision is now made in the Bill for the civil marriage of Hindus with Hindus, Buddhists, Sikhs or Jains. It is a matter for consideration whether any of the provisions of sections 22 to 26 of that Act should be incorporated in the Bill. We have already explained why we have not reproduced section 24. As for the other sections, it is worth reconsidering whether, e.g., a Hindu marrying a Hindu should be treated as an outcast merely because he has entered into a civil marriage rather than a sacramental marriage. For the present we have not thought it necessary to repeat in the Bill any of the provisions of sections 22—26 of the Special Marriage Act.

By order of the Governor,

Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

NOTICE.

In compliance with provisions of sub-section (2) of section 28 of Act III (B.C.) of 1923 and rule 16(2) of the rules made by the Local Government under section 30 of the said Act, it is hereby notified that Mr. Arthur Henry Colridge has been declared duly elected as a Councillor of the Corporation of Calcutta for the Special Constituency comprising the Calcutta Trades Association.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

Office of the Chief Controller of Prices, Bengal.

Calcutta, the 11th June 1942.

PRESS COMMUNIQUE.

Revised price of salt.

It will be recalled that on the 16th of May the Government of Bengal raised the price of salt to Rs. 250 per 100 maunds exclusive of duty and bags at Howrah for railborne salt from Karachi and the west coast ports of India. This was based on the then prevailing freight of Rs. 187-8 per 100 maunds. The freight has since been reduced by the railways by Rs. 25.

The Howrah Railway goods sheds being very much congested salt will be booked only to Salkia. The revised prices are as shown in the order annexed.

The revised price comes into force with effect from the 23rd June so as to enable the consignments already despatched being released in Bengal without loss.

Order.

The Registrar shall notify every cancellation or omission under this sub-rule to the registered users whose permitted use is affected thereby and to the registered proprietor of the trade mark.

63. Notification and hearing.—The Registrar shall notify in writing applications under section 42 to the registered proprietor and each registered user (not being the applicant) under the registration of the trade mark. Any person so notified who intends to intervene in the proceedings, shall within one month of the receipt of such notification give notice to the registrar on Form TM-32 to that effect and shall sent therewith a statement of the grounds of his intervention. The Registrar shall thereupon serve or cause to be served copies of such notice and statement on the other parties, viz., the applicant, the registered proprietor, the registered user whose registration is in suit, and any other registered user who intervenes. Any such party may, within such time or times as the Registrar may appoint, leave evidence in support of his case, and the Registrar after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard may accept or refuse the application or accept it subject to any conditions, amendments, modifications or limitations he may think right to impose.

In any case of doubt any party may apply to the Registrar for directions.

67. Intervention by third parties.—Any person, other than the registered proprietor, alleging interest in a registered trade mark in respect of which an application is made under rule 65 may apply on Form TM-27 for leave to intervene, stating the nature of his interest, and the Registrar may refuse or grant such leave after hearing (if so required) the parties concerned, upon such conditions and terms as he may deem fit.

If the Registrar is satisfied as to the facts of the case, he shall alter the register accordingly, but shall not require any fees to be paid on the forms.

(4) In case of the alteration of the address of a person entered in the register as the address for service of more than one registered proprietor or registered user of trade marks, the Registrar may, on proof that the said address is the address of the applicant and if satisfied that it is just to do so, accept an application from that person on a Form TM-50, amended so as to suit the case, for the appropriate alteration of the entries of his address as the address for service in the several registrations, particulars of which shall be given in the form, and may alter the entries accordingly.

(5) All applications under this rule on Form TM-50 shall be signed by the registered proprietor or the registered user, as the case may be, or by an agent expressly authorised by him for the purpose of such an application, unless in exceptional circumstances the Registrar otherwise allows.

The advertisements under sub-section (2) of section 48 shall mutatis mutandis be made in the same manner as advertisements relating to an application for registration of a trade mark.

74. Decision. Advertisement. Notification.—If the Registrar decides to allow the application he shall alter the mark in the register in the manner applied for and insert in the Journal a notification that the mark has been altered. If the application has not been advertised under rule 72 he shall also advertise in the Journal the trade mark as altered.

RE-CLASSIFICATION OF GOODS IN RESPECT OF EXISTING REGISTRATION.

75. Re-classification in respect of existing registration.—(1) On the classification set forth in the Fourth Schelule to these Rules being amended, the registered proprietor of a trade mark may apply to the Registrar on Form TM-40 for the conversion of the specification relating to his trade mark, so as to bring that specification into conformity with the amended classification. The application shall include a request for the like conversion of the specification in respect of any registered users under that registration.

(2) The Registrar shall, thereupon notify in writing to the registered proprietor a proposal showing the form which, in the Registrar's view, the amendment of the register should take in consequence of the proposed conversion. PRESS COMMUNIQUE.

Price of rice brought under control.

The question of bringing the price of rice under control has been under the consideration of Government for some time past, but no action was taken so far primarily because it was considered that the cultivators who formed the majority of the population of the province should not be deprived of the benefit accruing from any rise in the price of this commodity. Another reason for not bringing the price of rice under control was that the primary price of rice was not under control in other parts of India and consequently any local action might tend to divert supplies from the province to other provinces where there was no control.

While these considerations weighed with Government in not taking any action so far Government have been viewing the recent upward tendency of the prices with great concern. The present level of prices represents an increase of 65 per cent. on the pre-war level. In the opinion of Government, actual cultivators are not deriving much benefit from these increased prices. It is therefore considered that the stage has been reached when it will no longer be advisable, in the interests of the consumers, to leave the price uncontrolled. It has, therefore, been decided to fix the maximum price of coarse and medium rice at Rs. 5-12 and Rs. 6-4, respectively (wholesale), and Rs. 6-4 and Rs. 6-12, respectively (retail), with effect from the 1st July 1942, vide the annexed order issued by the Chief Controller of Prices, Bengal.

This decision has been taken in consultation with and with the consent of the three adjoining provinces, viz., Bihar, Orissa and Assam.

There are so many varieties of rice with such diversified nomenclature that it has been found difficult to fix maximum prices of each variety by name. The terms "coarse" and "medium" are popular and the varieties so known easily identifiable. It is hoped that the finer varieties of rice will find their price level in accordance with the prices of controlled varieties.

Resolution on the final report on the relief operations in the district of Birbhum during the years 1940 and 1941.

Miscellaneous.

RESOLUTION—No. 523T.Misc.

Darjeeling, the 16th June 1942.

Read—

Letter No. 574R.G., dated the 7th March 1942, from the Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, submitting the final report on the relief operations in the district of Birbhum during the years 1940 and 1941.

2. This district is bounded on the north-west by the district of Santhal Parganas, on the south by Burdwan and on the east by Murshidabad. The soil is mostly laterite clay and not very fertile. The country is partly undulating and partly flat. A hundred years ago there were extensive forests in Birbhum. Most of these have been cleared with the result that, except where the fertility of the soil has been conserved by terracing and manuring, the land is barren and produces almost nothing, not even sufficient grass for cattle grazing. The total area of the district is 1,742·96 square miles with a population of 1,048,307. Of this area approximately 1,453·60 square miles is culturable including groves and bamboo clumps and of this area again approximately 1,195·90 square miles can be cropped in years of abundant rainfall. Paddy is almost the only crop. Agriculture is the chief occupation of the people but no adequate irrigation facilities exist. Irrigation schemes are, therefore, an urgent necessity in this district. There are a few village industries which, however, give employment to a very small section of the population. The climate is hot and dry and is generally healthy. Malaria prevails annually before winter and there are occasional outbreaks of cholera, small-pox, etc. Leprosy is one of the fell diseases of the district, prevalent mainly amongst the poor classes but is not entirely unknown even amongst the Bhadralog classes.

3. The economic condition of the cultivators, artisans and labourers is one of extreme poverty. The cultivators are heavily in debt and the artisans and labourers hardly earn a living wage. The operations of the Debt Settlement and the Money-lenders' Acts have tended to protect the cultivators' lands to some extent, but rural credit has completely dried up. These people live from hand to mouth and one failure of crop means widespread distress.

4. In 1940, the rainfall for the period from April to October was 25·75″ only against the average of 49·63″ for the previous eight years. The rainfall in October—the most crucial month—was only 0;36″ against the average of 3;18″. The crop that survived this unusual drought was about two annas of the area sown and consequently there was widespread distress. It was obvious that scarcity conditions were bound to supervene and very early steps were taken to open test works and arrange for distribution of gratuitous relief. The situation became more and more serious till eventually scarcity had to be declared on the 23rd December 1940 in the Sadar and Rampurhat subdivisions covering 62 unions. Gradually the other parts of the district were affected and by the end of May 1941, 146 unions out of 174 were affected with scarcity.

5. Relief measures commenced on the 25th September 1940 with the opening of test works and continued till the end of October 1941 when a good harvest was assured. They consisted of—

(1) Test Works.
(2) Gratuitous relief.
(3) Charitable relief.
(4) Relief of cattle from scarcity of fodder.
(5) Relief of persons and cattle from scarcity of drinking water.
(6) Land Improvement Loans.
(7) Agricultural Loans.

6. Test Works.—The test works consisted of—

(a) improvement of existing roads by the district board,

(b) improvement of irrigation tanks under the Bengal Tanks Improvement Act by the district board, and (c) improvement of irrigation tanks under the Bengal Tanks Improvement Act by the Collector.

Fourteen roads were improved by the district board at a total cost of Rs. 30,630 and 226,357 units were relieved. Fourteen tanks were improved by the district board at a total cost of Rs. 9,368 out of the advance of Rs. 10,000 sanctioned by Government and 57,184 units were relieved.

Two hundred and seventy-one tanks were improved by the Collector at a total cost of about Rs. 1,27,172 and 715,477 units were relieved.

The improvement of these tanks have been of permanent benefit to the people as an area of 12,000 acres of land will get irrigation facilities. The tanks will also enable rearing of fish in a water area of 588 acres.

7. Gratuitous relief.—Gratuitous relief was given at Government expense. The lists of persons entitled to receive gratuitous relief were prepared by members of relief committees which were constituted with official and non-official members.

Paddy husking scheme was introduced on a large scale to give relief to the people who were not physically capable of attending the test works and the rice procured by paddy husking was distributed as gratuitous relief instead of cash. The distribution of doles in kind was greatly appreciated by the people as owing to shortage of paddy in the district great difficulty was experienced by them in procuring their requirements of rice. The rates adopted for distribution of doles were as under :—

	Paddy doles per day.	Rice doles per day.	Cash doles per day.
	Ch.	Ch.	Pice.
Adult ..	11½	7½	3
Child ..	7½	5	2

A total sum of Rs. 2,35,906-7-9 was spent and 4,198,152 units were relieved —a unit being one person relieved for one day.

8. Charitable relief.—This relief was organised and conducted by the District Relief Committee under the supervision of the District Officer. It was started at first from the grant of Rs. 2,000 made by Government from Joy Govind Laws Fund and was subsequently supplemented by a further allotment of Rs. 20,000 made to the Collector out of the grant received from the Indian Peoples' Famine Trust and by contributions in cash and kind raised locally. In addition to gratuitous doles distributed in paddy, rice and cash, 3,010 pieces of new cloth were distributed from the committee's funds to deserving persons. The total expenditure incurred was Rs. 20,290-4 out of which a sum of Rs. 18,420-11 was distributed from Government grants.

9. Relief of cattle affected by scarcity of fodder.—Owing to the failure of paddy crop of 1940 there was a serious shortage of straw for fodder for cattle. To save the plough cattle from starvation straw was imported from the districts of Burdwan and Murshidabad at a cheap rate and distributed to the people as agricultural loans at a total cost of Rs. 30,170-10.

10. Relief of persons and cattle affected by scarcity of drinking water. —The failure of crops was accompanied by a shortage in the supply of drinking water. Four hundred and forty-eight projects of cement ring wells and 12 projects of tube-wells were undertaken from the grant of Rs. 50,000 sanctioned by Government for the purpose. It was found later that this number of wells would not suffice and so the sinking of an adequate number of earthen ring wells locally known as Patkua was taken up with a further Government grant of Rs. 4,000. The union boards were also instructed to sink earthen pits in the shape of wells on the beds of dried up tanks and the cost on account of each such well seldom exceeded Rs. 4. Five to 20 such wells were dug in many unions from the union board funds and they were of great help to the people and to cattle. The water from these wells was good and there was no epidemic of cholera or dysentery.

11. Land Improvement Loans.—A sum of Rs. 20,950 was advanced in 52 cases to 98 persons. Loans were liberally advanced, but the number of applicants was not large. The loans were asked for mostly for improvement of tanks.

12. Agricultural loans.—A sum of Rs. 6,53,315-8 was advanced during the period of scarcity including the value of straw distributed as agricultural loans. These loans were very helpful to the cultivators as on account of the severe contraction of rural credit, it would have otherwise been impossible for them to cultivate their lands.

13. In the opinion of Government the relief measures in this district were adequate and were conducted with efficiency and economy for which credit mainly is due to the District Officer, Rai B. B. Sarkar Bahadur. Thanks of Government are also due to Mr. B. K. Guha, I.C.S., District Judge of Burdwan, for the help he rendered in arranging for the purchase and despatch of straw from the canal areas of Burdwan; to the managers of the branches of the Pioneer Bank, Ltd., at Suri and Bolpur for the help they rendered in remitting money; and to members of union boards and other gentlemen who gave their services ungrudgingly.

14. In addition to the names already mentioned the Governor is pleased to direct that the good work done by the following officials and non-officials be recorded :—
